Women Play Important Part In Area's Program

The glory for the progress and accomplishments of Upper Crabtree cannot go to the men — women have added their share to the community what it.

Among their activities, besides making good homes, is their Home Demonstration club of thirty members, with Mrs. Willis Smith presi-

(Note: Today's column is written by Rose Womack, who tells about her recent trip to Tennessee in the first part of the column.)

After nearly five years away from Oak Ridge, Tenn., I found that it had changed considerably since I left. As Carolyn Sayer remarked when she saw it, "I guess this is one of the most unusual places there is."

We were both amazed at the many new and modern buildings, most of which were living quarters for employees of the Atomic Energy Plants. The houses might be described as "huge cracker boxes". Most of them have flat tops.

For a long time church services were held in theatres, but now new churches have been constructed.

The club meets every month, and follow the general program to a high degree of success.

There are 5 electric stoves in the community; 50 electric refrigerators, and 17 electric water systems.

During the past year seven major exterior home improvement projects were completed and three beautification projects finished.

Other projects included a new home for Mr. and Mrs. Rex Messer, and floor finishing projects for Mrs. C. M. Rogers and Mrs. Sam Hill.

The women take keen pride in their homes, and it only takes a casual visit there to see the extent of this justified pride.

and they should be classed with the best because they are of the very best materials.

Our hostess, Miss Karen Reynolds, a former seventh grade school chum of mine, displayed very good taste in the entertainment she planned for us.

On Tuesday afternoon, Karen entertained with a back-yard luncheon and invited some of the girls we both attended school with in the seventh grade. It was wonderful seeing so many of my old friends.

The high light of our trip was going through the newly constructed three million dollar school. Yes, I said three million dollars!

Of course, it was built by the government. It looked like something we, two students from Waynesville, might see in a dream. It simply cannot be described just as we saw it.

As you enter the main entrance you get the feeling that you are walking into an exclusive hotel or something similar. Each and every room was equipped with the most modern and up-to-date furniture.

It took us almost four hours to go through the four main wings, and then we didn't quite take it all in. The only thing lacking in this school is a swimming pool, and they hope to have that soon.

I might add that this school is the newest and most modern equipped high school in the United States as advertised in many leading magazines.

As we left the school, Carolyn said, "Rose, the kids back home will never believe us if we tell them about this school."

Tommy "Jeep" Norris entertained with a good ole fashioned square dance at The Maples last Friday night.

The street by his house was closed off and the street dance got into full swing about nine o'clock. A large group of young people, both local and out-of-towners, was present, and everyone enjoyed it.

Charles Alley, Harold Metcalfe, and Hardy Stinnett furnished the music, and the calling was done by Linton Palmer, Chief of Police. Orvil Noland, and Fred Calhoun.

When "Jeep" entertains with a party or one of his shindigs, you know you're gonna' have fun, and that goes for the street dance, too.

The annuals still have not arrived for Waynesville Hi students. That seems to be the main topic of discussion among the students these days.

The company printing the books has not shipped them yet, and has given no definite date as to when they will ship them, in spite of the attempts to get a shipping date by the members of the staff and Mr. Bowles.

As soon as the books arrive, cards will be mailed to the subscribers and a date set to have a time for everyone to meet at the school and get signatures in their books.
