Patrolmen Have Busy Night On Highways

Just what part the moon played with traffic on Friday night has not been determined, but Haywood's five patrolmen found a sleepless night as they handled the trying situation. It all began about ten o'clock, just as the patrolmen were closing their day's work. First it was Patrolman Bryan Baysden that nabbed a drunken driver on Highway No. 19A-23. He brought the driver to jail, and about that time Cpl. Smith came in with a speeder, caught in Waynesville making 65 miles an hour through residential districts and across Main Street.

In the meantime, Patrolman H. Dayton had stopped a man driving drunk near Clyde, and brought him to jail. As the patrolmen were about ready to call it a day, for it was then one o'clock, a call came in that a driver on Highway No. 19-23 needed some "official assistance." The patrol started out and brought in their third man charged with driving drunk on the night. While all this was going on, the other two patrolmen were just as busy. Patrolman Joe Murrill arrested two for not having a driver's license, and one for operating a car with a gutted muffler. Patrolman Wooten also caught two for operating without a driver's license. All this activity after ten at night.

Cpl. Smith nabbed an 18-year-old boy as he went through East Waynesville intersection at a high rate of speed. The patrolman gave chase, and caught the boy after the car had hit a ditch. Two other teen-agers were in the car at the time. No one was injured, although the speeding car narrowly missed heavy traffic in crossing Main Street, Cpl. Smith said. The boy was lodged in jail and later released under $300 bond.

The blaze was discovered about one o'clock by a taxi driver passing the highway. Mr. Palmer was called, and the sawdust under the cut-off saws was blazing freely, he said.
