of our community meetings in the near future. He at one time lived on White Oak.

It was decided to enter both a girl's and boy's softball team in the coming community tournament.

The Teague Family program was postponed until the next meeting night, September 15, when a large crowd is expected. The ladies were asked to bring cake.

The closing hymn was sung, after which refreshments of sandwiches and cold punch were served.

Both of our field days are over for another year and we feel that many new friends and acquaintances were made. When the Francis Cove Community visited with us, they were greeted at the Cove Creek intersection and then the tour of White Oak began, with county agents Wayne Corpening and Herb Singletary and chairman George Boring of this community leading the way. One hundred and eighteen folks came from Francis Cove and were welcomed by a similar number from this community.

When the tour of the community was ended, dinner was waiting ready to be served. Long tables were built on the community

PLANE NUMBER 13 MAINTAINS ITS REPUTATION

RETURNING FROM A SUCCESSFUL MISSION over Korea, Marine pilot Lt. Burcher V. Sheard was landing his aircraft on the carrier USS Sicily when the cap on the craft's gas tank jarred loose and the gasoline burst into flame. The plane escaped with minor damage and Sheard suffered a broken arm. The number on the craft is "13," as you must have observed. (U. S. Navy-Defense Department Photo from International) grounds and filled with platters of fried chicken, stew beef, and many other foods that go to make up a good meal. In fact, there was enough food left to have a picnic supper when the eventful day was over.

The Rev. M. R. Williamson of Waynesville was a specially invited guest. Accompanying him was his son George, and his young friend Billy Spitzer. Mr. Williamson returned thanks before the meal was served.

The horseshoe events were held while the ladies cleaned up the tables, and then everyone gathered in the Community House for the group singing and special numbers. Mrs. Clarence Kelley entertained with music during the entire dinner and also played a special number after the group singing. She is an accomplished pianist.

Everyone then loaded in cars and trucks and headed for the Fines Creek School grounds to see the tractor driving contest and the two softball games. We were proud of Edgar Messer when he set a new all-time record of 47 seconds in the tractor driving contest.

We were running late of schedule and had to miss visiting the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Fisher, the last stop of our scheduled tour.

Approximately seventy-five friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. W. L. Messer Saturday night, August 25. Mrs. Messer and her daughter Mrs. Mack Bryson were joint hostesses at a household shower complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Yoder Messer, recently married. Refreshments were served during the evening.

The 4-H Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Boring August 31, for a brief business meeting. Both leaders, Teague Williams and Edna Davis, were present. The next regular meeting will be this Friday night, September 7, at the Community House. It was decided to hold the meetings every two weeks. All you clubbers, come on out to this YOUR meeting! The girls are asked to bring

'Unto These Hills' Breaks All Records As Season Ends

S. C. Marine Finds His Camouflage Is Too Convincing

WITH THE FIRST MARINE DIVISION IN KOREA — (AP) — Good camouflage is designed to fool the enemy but when it confuses a Marine old-timer it is considered well above average.

Gunnery Sergeant Charles A. McCurdy of 153 South Bull Street, Columbia, S. C., was so busy seeing that his company carried out its camouflage orders that he was a bit lax in placing bits of foliage on his own helmet. The company first sergeant, Master Sergeant Paul A. Martin, of 822 Broadway, Springfield, Ohio, told the Gunny he needed more foliage on his steel chapeau.

"Don't get panicky," Sgt. McCurdy said, "it's practically done." He hauled out his knife and began cutting some likely branches beside the first sergeant — from Martin's own helmet.

Almost a year must pass before one can again come "Unto These Hills" at Cherokee across the Indian trails trod this season by more than 150,000 paying people.

The outdoor drama concluded its second season at the Mountainside Theatre Monday night, breaking all records for such spectacles. Many nights it played to capacity audiences, and, as the season approached its end, to "standing room only." Sometimes as many as 1,000 people were standing.

Last year record of 107,000 people was far surpassed, as was the number, 53,255, who paid to see Paul Green's famous "Lost Colony", which is performed at the other end of the state.

Kermit Hunter, author of "Unto These Hills," is also drawing large crowds at New Salem, Ind., where 50,000 paid to see the first season of "Forever This Land."

But the gates are closed for this season to "Unto These Hills," and the hills return to the Cherokee and the native white man.
