Special Mountaineer Correspondent

The 175 members of the Haywood County out-of-state farm tour made their first stop in New England this noon when they had lunch at Wallingford, Conn.

They started out this morning at 5 o'clock with a visit to New York City's famous Vegetable Market where the many varieties and huge quantities were beyond anything even Haywood County farmers are used to seeing. Name the vegetable and it was at the Market, which constantly receives fresh supplies from all over the country. Truck produce from the South was there, much of which made the trip in refrigerated trucks from southern produce markets.

A tour of the city followed, and many Haywood people witnessed for the first time many of the famous sights they had heard about all their lives: Fruit Market, Wall Street, Chinatown, the harbor and others.

From New York the four-bus caravan came directly to Connecticut.

Sunday started with breakfast at Staunton, Va., with a visit to Washington, D. C. the big event of the morning. A brief stop was made at Luray, Va., before pulling into the nation's capital. An hour tour of Washington was conducted by Jack Lynn, a former Haywood farm agent, and now a representative of the American Farm Bureau.

Lunch was prepared at Howard Johnson's Restaurant in Baltimore, Md., which is only a short distance from Washington. The afternoon was spent on the highway, including the Pennsylvania Turnpike, as the tour sped toward New York City, destination for the night. (See Farm Tour—Page 5)

Many Programs Scheduled For August At Junaluska

Seven South-wide conferences and leadership training schools are scheduled during August at the Lake Junaluska Methodist Assembly, according to Dr. H. G. Allen, superintendent of the church's southeastern summer headquarters.

Annual meeting of the Methodist Historical Society, southeastern jurisdiction, will be here August 3-4. Dr. Edgar H. Nease, Charlotte, is president of the society. The guest speaker will be Bishop Paul E. Martin, Little Rock, Ark.

Dr. Nease is also southeastern president of the 141 Methodist district superintendents who will hold a joint meeting with more than 100 pastors of nine states August 5-8. Dr. Clare Cotton, Tallahassee, is president of the pastors' organization.

A daily Bible School is scheduled August 4-8, to be conducted by the Rev. W. B. Garrison of Emory University, Atlanta.

More than 400 church workers have enrolled for a leadership school, August 4-15. The training program is designed for paid and volunteer workers in the field of Christian education. The school is sponsored by the Methodist General Board of Education, which has its national headquarters in Nashville. The Rev. M. Earl Cunningham, director of leadership education for the board's Local Church Division, will be in charge.

Senator John Sparkman (D-Ala.) will be the principal speaker at a convocation of 2,500 Sunday School officers and teachers, August 16-19. The convocation director is the Rev. M. Leo Rippey, Nashville, staff member of the Methodist Board of Education.

Slight Damage Sustained In Car Accident

A Marine, who was on his way to Cherry Point from California, was convicted of reckless driving in the Clyde police court Friday after he was in a collision with a pick-up truck at 9:55 a.m. that was driven by Robert L. Lunsford of Rt. 1, Stockville.

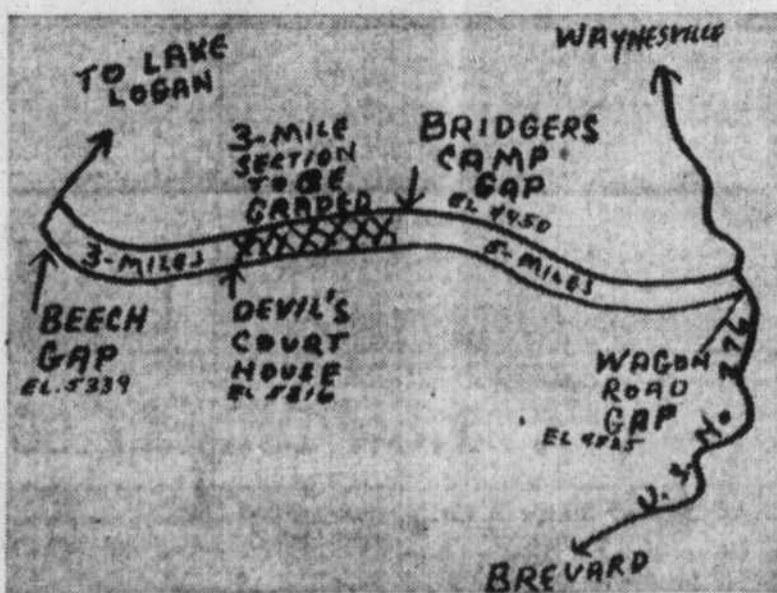

The Marine, Gerald Dean Bailey, whose home address is Rt. 2, May, Texas, was accompanied by another Marine and his wife. Riding with Mr. Lunsford were his parents. His mother was thrown out of the truck but was not injured.

Damage to the truck, according to Patrolman H. Dayton, who investigated, amounted to about $75, while damage to the car was about $150.

Retired Bishop Will Lecture At Lake Junaluska

BISHOP RALPH S. CUSHMAN

The Methodist Assembly program at Lake Junaluska this week will feature a series of six lectures by Bishop Ralph S. Cushman of St. Paul, Minn.

He will speak daily at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. in Junaluska auditorium, Monday through Wednesday, on the general subject "The Personal Search to Make God Real".

Bishop Cushman retired a few days ago at the Methodist Church's North Central Jurisdictional Conference, held in Milwaukee. He had been resident bishop of the St. Paul episcopal area since 1939, and previously he was bishop of the Denver area for seven years.

After his appearance at Lake Junaluska, Bishop and Mrs. Cushman will make their home in Raleigh. Their son, Dr. Robert E. Cushman, is professor of systematic theology at Duke University.

Bishop Cushman is often referred to as the "poet laureate" of the Methodist Church. He is the author of several volumes of poetry, as well as numerous books on religious subjects. A native of Vermont, he was ordained a minister in 1902.

Burning Garbage Can Turns Out Fire Truck

All that commotion you heard about two o'clock today was caused by a burning garbage can. Firemen answered a call to Central Cleaners, and discovered, on arrival, that someone had apparently thrown a lighted match in the garbage can.

Damage was confined to a wheelbarrow (which was placed over the garbage can) and the garbage can itself.

It was all over in six minutes flat.

Equipment Too Small To Meet The Heavy Needs

Town officials this morning termed the water situation in this community as critical, and called upon citizens to conserve water.

If the voluntary conservation program does not bring about an improvement, then officials will on Thursday, issue ordinances making it a violation to:

- 1—Use a hose for lawns or gardens.
- 2—Wash cars.
- 3—Wiffully waste water.

G. C. Ferguson, town manager, said that the reservoir reserve was down four feet this morning, and that Bradford Mehaffey, superintendent of the water system, predicted the level would be down seven feet by tonight.

The officials said: "This is dangerously low, and should we have a big fire, the reservoir might be easily emptied."

The continued dry weather has caused a lighter pressure on the mountain, and with only an 8-inch pipe line feeding the filtering plant from the mountain, the flow has been lessened.

Mr. Ferguson said that some rain would help, but that the major problem was getting water from the mountain to the filtering plant.

"Even then, we face a serious matter, since the filtering plant is not large enough to take care of the load which is required during the summer season," Mr. Ferguson said.

This plea for the conservation of water applies to Waynesville, Hazelwood, and Lake Junaluska, since all are served by the Waynesville system.

The town stopped washing streets some weeks ago as a means of saving water, and pointed out this morning that all business places, such as service stations, are asked not to wash their places of business for the duration of this emergency.

"We hope that we can get by through a cooperative program and not have to enforce restrictions," Mr. Ferguson said.

"We feel that once the people realize the critical situation, and what we face, that everyone will readily cooperate with us and do their part to save every gallon of water possible."

"Should this fail, then we will be forced to make strict regulations, with severe penalties for those who use water for those things not termed essential."

Mr. Ferguson said that the officials would gladly escort any group to inspect the system, and see first hand just the critical stage at which the water reserve now stands.

MISS MOORE AT ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

Miss Stephanie Moore is expected to return to her home at Lake Junaluska tomorrow after undergoing surgery at St. Joseph's Hospital in Asheville.

Waynesville Citizens Give Generously For Hospital Operation

Zeb Shelton, 20, was rushed to Baptist Hospital in Atlanta Sunday afternoon for an emergency operation, resulting from injuries sustained about a week ago.

Shelton was working on a car which had been jacked up, when the car slipped and caused severe head injuries.

Waynesville citizens were called upon Saturday morning by David Underwood to contribute over $300 towards the expenses of Shelton

GOP, Democratic Standard Bearers

ADLAI E. STEVENSON

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

After spirited Conventions in Chicago, the nation's two major political parties have chosen the above men as their representatives in the Nov. 4 elections. Gov. Adlai Stevenson and Senator John Sparkman will head the Democratic ticket. General Dwight Eisenhower and Senator Richard Nixon were chosen by the GOP as its candidates.

Bloodmobile Gets 89 Pints On Canton Visit

Eighty-nine pints of blood, badly needed by the armed forces, were donated by Canton townsfolk when the Bloodmobile visited there last Wednesday, according to Mrs. Helen Pressley, executive director of the Canton branch of the Red Cross.

The Bloodmobile, which visited in Canton under the sponsorship of the Boy Scouts, was open from noon to five o'clock. More than 100 people offered their blood.

Mrs. Pressley reported that several donors had, as a result of their latest donations, gained membership in the "Gallon Club".

Sadlers Open Tourist Court On Soco Road

One of the most recent tourist courts in Haywood County and western North Carolina to open is the Skyview Motor Court, located 11 miles west of Waynesville on Highway 19 at an elevation of 4,000 feet.

The court contains 20 modern units with double and single beds, tile showers, and steam heat. The court needs no water coolers because the temperature of the spring water, even on the hottest summer days, is a refreshing 45 degrees.

The second largest court on Soco Road, the Skyview is operated by Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Sadler, who are formerly of Jacksonville. (See Sadler's Court—Page 5)

Dr. Edgar H. Nease of Charlotte and the Rev. James W. Sells of Atlanta were named executive secretaries of the Southeastern Jurisdictional Council of the Methodist Church last week, replacing retiring Dr. William F. Quillian of Atlanta.

Dr. Quillian has held the post since it was created eight years ago and the council commended him for his "wise guidance in establishing the work of the council on an even keel."

Sells will supervise work in the radio and television fields, short term school, rural church work, church extension and co-operation with the general and jurisdictional boards.

One of Dr. Nease's primary duties will be supervision of the program at Lake Junaluska.

According to Dr. Elmer T. Clark, chairman of the Assembly committee on program and publicity, the Board of Trustees agreed three years ago to separate the functions of the program and publicity from the business and grounds management in order to lighten the burden of the superintendent of the Assembly. It is expected that Dr. Nease will work with the committee on program and publicity in planning the summer program for Lake Junaluska and will operate it during the summer months. He will probably move his headquarters from Atlanta to Lake Junaluska during the spring and summer months.

If this plan is carried out, Dr. Clark states that it will relieve Dr. H. G. Allen, superintendent of the Assembly, of some of his burdens which are too heavy and diverse for one man. The arrangement will more closely integrate the Lake Junaluska Assembly with the total work of the jurisdiction.

Dr. Nease is at present superintendent of the Charlotte district (See Officials—Page 5)
