

Two Major Presidential Candidates List Views

ADLAI STEVENSON

The foreign and domestic views of General Dwight Eisenhower, Republican Presidential nominee, and Gov. Adlai Stevenson, Democratic Presidential nominee, have been collected from various sources by Congressional Quarterly. The Mountaineer today publishes the stands of both candidates on eight important domestic issues. At a later date the opponents' views on foreign policy will be published. Their foreign policy stands embrace four issues.

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

COMMUNISTS IN U. S.
EISENHOWER: "No one could be more determined than I that any kind of communistic, subversive or pinkish influence be uprooted from responsible places in our government. Now make no mistake about it. On the other hand, I believe that can be done with the use of competent leadership of the kind of facility and agency we have now. And I believe it can be done without besmirching the reputation of any innocent man or condemning by loose association..." (Abilene press conference, 6-5-52.)
STEVENSON: "That the Communist Party—and all it stands for—is a danger to our Republic, as real as it is sinister, is clear to all who have the slightest understanding of our democracy... (But) laws infringing our rights and intimidating unoffending persons without enlarging our security will neither catch subversives nor win converts to our better ideas." (June 26, 1951 message vetoing Broyles Bill calling for loyalty oaths and investigations.)

CIVIL RIGHTS
EISENHOWER: "I do not believe that we can cure all of the evils in men's hearts by law and when you get to compulsory action in certain phases of this thing I really believe we can do more by leadership in getting states to do it than to make it a federal compulsory thing." (Abilene press conference, 6-5-52.) "The full power, the full influence of the federal government must be used in correcting any unnecessary discrimination of this kind, but it must do it by first sticking to the jobs for which it was set up to do." (Detroit speech, 6-14-52.)

STEVENSON: "In our present peril we look to all the people to join in the common defense. If we do not discriminate in sacrifice, we cannot discriminate in opportunity. So again I bespeak your sympathetic consideration for fair employment practices legislation in Illinois." (Governor's message to Illinois legislature, 1-3-51.)

FEDERAL SPENDING
EISENHOWER: The United States "cannot stand a budget of $85 billion indefinitely with money at its present value. Even $75 billion terrifies me... We must aim for a $30 to $40 billion cut." (Detroit press conference, 6-15-52.)
STEVENSON: "Spending in non-essential areas (must be held) to the minimum and, if need be, defer social improvements until we can afford to pay for them." (The Progressive magazine, March, 1952.) "I like to be known as a hard man with a dollar." (Attributed to Stevenson.)

CORRUPTION
EISENHOWER: "When I say 'let's clean our corruption,' that pertains to all mechanism of our political processes as well as the government itself. It applies to political parties; it applies to primaries." (Detroit speech, 6-14-52.)
STEVENSON: "One corrupt public official is one too many; one corrupt private citizen also is one too many." (Address at Jackson Day dinner Feb. 26, 1952, East St. Louis, Ill.) "I should like to point out that public officials don't corrupt each other; that behind every fixer is a fix, behind every influence-peddler is someone who wants the influence." (Article by Stevenson in The Atlantic magazine, February 1952.)

LABOR
EISENHOWER: "We have got to find a way, a means, of respecting the advances that labor has made—union labor has made—and they've been very great... Now, I believe in their advance. We should not give up these social gains. But I do believe when we just pile law upon law, complication upon complication, in an effort to solve this thing we are not doing too well." (Abilene press conference, 6-15-52.)
STEVENSON: "Some features of the law (Taft-Hartley) seem to be to advance the cause of good labor relations, and other features, in my opinion, do not. I think the Democratic platform should recommend modifications."

HEALTH INSURANCE
EISENHOWER: "When it comes to some details of this medical question I am not going to answer too specifically because what could be in a bill that is labeled compulsory health insurance I'm not so certain, (I am) against bureaucratic government and submitting our lives toward a control that would lead inevitably to socialism... Now I do believe that every American has a right to decent medical care." (Abilene press conference, 6-5-52.)

STEVENSON: "I am against the socialization of the practice of medicine as much as I would be against the socialization of my own profession, the law... If the insurance principle could be brought to bear on these catastrophic illnesses, it would largely eliminate the specter of terror from the average home... I am sure that... the common objective can largely be realized without the destruction of professional independence."

TAXES
EISENHOWER: "The next danger I list is excessive taxation; rates that destroy incentive to excel in skill and in production... long-continued taxes that are only a little below the confiscatory level will destroy free government." (Abilene speech, 6-4-52.)

STEVENSON: "The present tax burden is disheartening and dangerous, but insurance for peace, however expensive, is cheaper than war."

ECONOMIC CONTROLS
EISENHOWER: "When you get into a really grave emergency... a great global war... then at least while you're getting adjusted I believe you have to use very specific controls of all kinds... I believe in the long run in a free economy—and I have far more faith in the interplay of the influence of prices and of supply and demand and of the normal action of the government in extending and reducing credits, and with discount rates, and so on, than I do in any direct controls." (Abilene press conference, 6-5-52.)

STEVENSON: "We must 'win the fight against inflation... (but) I don't presume to say on what date wages could be frozen or on what date prices should have been stabilized. But I do say that prices and wages chasing each other upward are like a dog chasing his tail, and if we don't watch out we'll all get dizzy and topple into the abyss.'" (1951 speech to Illinois Federation of Labor 69th Convention.)
