'Distiller' Never Intended This

Last week law enforcement officers made sure that some 73 gallons of privately distilled "likker" would not be put to the use for which it was intended when they poured it all down a drain at the courthouse. The whiskey had been captured in automobiles a few days earlier. ## Water Bond Election Set For Waynesville November 8th

Expansion Of Water System Is Urgent Need

The week of November second will be a busy one for voters in Waynesville—the general election on Tuesday, the fourth, and the $300,000 water bond election on Saturday, the 8th.

The Board of Aldermen set the new date for Saturday, November 8th, after postponing the election from June 28th, due to the Second Primary.

The Board felt that two elections on the same day in June would be confusing to the voters of the town, and ordered a postponement. In the meantime the Haywood dry forces had petitioned the County board of elections for an election on beer and wine, and the board of aldermen refused to call the water bond election, since such an election would have blocked the holding of the beer-wine election.

The water bond election is for the purpose of expanding the facilities of the water system, by increasing the capacity of the pipe lines from the mountain, and construction of a new filtering plant.

Town officials pointed out that there is sufficient water on the mountain, but the facilities for getting it to the filtering plant, and getting it filtered is far from large enough to supply the increasing demands for water.

A few weeks ago, the community experienced a serious water shortage during the peak of the season, when the dry weather had curtailed the flow of the streams, and reduced the pressure on the mountain.

Town officials have pointed out that the water bonds, and interest would be repaid from water receipts and that no additional tax would be put on property to meet the obligations on the bonds. "The water department will be self-supporting, and pay for the expansion, without a penny cost to property owners, except for the actual water consumed," an official pointed out.

School Buses Get More Attention From Patrolmen

The state's school bus transportation program is going to receive more attention from the Highway Patrol according to a directive from the patrol's commanding officers, Col. W. B. Lentz.

Col. Lentz said today certain new steps to insure the safety of children riding school buses were to become effective immediately. A more comprehensive inspection of every school bus, with permanent records on the vehicle's condition, will be set up, Col. Lentz said. A regular monthly check will be made by a highway patrolman and a copy of his report will be filed with patrol headquarters, the county superintendent and the chief mechanic.

"Inspection of school buses by patrolmen isn't new," Col. Lentz remarked, "but the inspection will be more detailed henceforth."

In addition to more comprehensive inspections, Col. Lentz said a patrolman will accompany each school bus driver on his regular route at least once during the school year. During that time the officer will observe the driver's habits and skill at the wheel. He will make notes of potentially dangerous road conditions such as blind curves, intersections and shrubbery along the shoulders.

Col. Lentz indicated that the State Highway Commission would cooperate in removing or altering any particularly hazardous condition.

The accompanying patrolman will also make special checks on bridges, and will observe traffic patterns and loading points along the bus route.

Col. Lentz said that recommendations had been made to have no (See School Buses—Page 2)

Tourist Assn. Head

Harry Evans and son, Gary, left Saturday for Jacksonville, Florida where they are visiting the former's father, Sam Evans.

L. E. DeVous was re-elected last week as president of the Haywood County Tourist Association. (Mountaineer Photo).

In Haywood County, where visitors from Florida make up a large proportion of the summer population, the Floridians are establishing their own colonies.

The group at Balsam has been firmly established there for some time and is widely known.

Much more recent, however—is the adolescent but thriving community of Umville which has already gained a reputation as the summer retreat for professors and their families from the University of Miami, The UM, of course, gave the hillside site its unofficial name.

Umville is perched, for the most part, on the steep hillside approximately opposite Barber's Orchard, which gives the Florida folks a spectacular view of the thousands of apple trees. A sign on the right side of the highway marked simply "UM, 1 m." is the only marker to guide the motorist.

The approach to Umville is over a gradually rising dirt road, and then, all of a sudden, as the motorist comes into the clear Umville lies ahead of him, chiefly on the left, on the steep hillside. Two or three homes have been built on the lower ground but poking out from among the trees on the high land are small homes whose picture windows are easily seen at a distance.

Privacy, and not a commanding view—either to see or be seen—was the primary concern of some builders. A few homes are located (See Umville—Page 1, Section 2)

Haywood County Library To Have Six Free Films Available Each Month

Beginning today the Haywood County Public Library will have at least six films available for use each month. This program which will last a year is the outgrowth of the project of the Audio-Visual Committee, Public Libraries Section, North Carolina Library Association, Miss Margaret Johnston, County Librarian, has served on this committee since it started at its first meeting in Charlotte on October 25, 1950 to study the needs and possibilities for a film program for the state. From the many meetings of this committee and the cooperation and aid from the North Carolina Library Commission and the Bureau of Visual Education of the University of North Carolina has sprung the program for film service for adults. Ten County libraries—Durham, Cabarrus, Caldwell, Durham, Forsyth, Gaston, Haywood, Nantahala, Scotland and Wake—are to become the spearhead for the project and they have the advantage of the first bookings. After that time the films go into a pool for use in any library in the state.

Following is a list of the films available until September 26th:

DRUG ADDICTION—21 minutes—black and white—A dramatic and straightforward story of the hazards of narcotic drugs. Depicts with stark realism all phases of this problem, particularly as it affects high school youth. Explains the derivation of heroin, marijuana and cocaine and employs animated drawings to describe their physiological effects. The connection between drug addiction and crime is shown and the highlights of a typical case study are dramatized.

UNITED NATIONS IN WORLD DISPUTES—21 minutes—black and white—Reviews four major disputes that since 1945 have threatened world peace—Indonesia, Palestine, India and Korea—and demonstrates how the UN was successful in resolving each one and our problem in Korea today.

A plan to avoid another world war by raising the living standards of underprivileged nations so they would have no reason for accepting communism was described Thursday night by a prominent Waynesville businessman to the Lions Club.

The speaker, H. W. Rollman, president of Ho Search, which maintains shoe factories in 30 countries of which Welleco is a part, has had his plan receive national recognition by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt in her newspaper column and through members of Congress to whom he has been sending his ideas.

Mr. Rollman, for the purpose of establishing world peace, has organized because "what it will take is world construction, and what we have to do is stop world destruction."

The plan, as he outlined it, calls for a maintenance of our military potential but that it be cut down to the essentials of parity with the Russians. The saving of $30 or $40 billion that Mr. Rollman said would result each year should be used to getting people all over the world to work for the benefit of the underprivileged nations.

"Russia knows," Mr. Rollman pointed out, "that atomic bombs alone will not break our back" but must follow up such an attack with an invasion of the U. S. with the millions of soldiers taken from satellite countries. That is the reason, the speaker said, as to why Stalin is attempting to subjugate so many nations.

"Let's forget about Russia, we can't get in there, and there is nothing we can do to make the Russian people see daylight," the speaker said, "But what we can do is this:

"We can swing two billion people, all the world's population except the Russians, on our side. We have the means to make the whole world want to fight with us and refuse to take up arms for Russia. We can make the rest of the world so strong in so short a time that Russian expansion will be stopped once and forever and we can live according to the Bible."

Mr. Rollman said he has proposed in a message to Congress to:

(1) Raise the standard of living all over the world to equal that in the U. S.

(2) Make the rest of the world self-supporting and spend $20 to $30 billion every year to bring this about by educating all people, to build factories.

The speaker warned that sending money only would not accomplish anything.

"We need conscription. Everybody between 18 and 30 years of age will have to serve a year or two, not as soldiers, but as emissaries all over the world as teachers, mechanics, bankers, shoe cobblers, as grocery clerks, and many others," Mr. Rollman explained.

"The only way to save the world," he continued, "is for three million healthy and smart young Americans to serve in foreign countries for a number of years to spread our way (See Rollman—Page 2)
