The Highway Commission placed the first layer of asphalt on the highway Wednesday and had hoped to pour the second course this week. But a brief delay has caused this work to be postponed until Monday. Once this second layer has been added, the highway will be open for general use.

A top course will be poured on the mile and a half stretch next Tuesday or Wednesday and final work on the section will be completed except for several days that will be required for finishing up on details.

Highway patrolmen will direct the motorcade Friday afternoon, which will be required to move at a slow rate of speed over the unfinished section. Mr. Hutchinson emphasized that only vehicles in the motorcade will be allowed on the highway Friday afternoon and that the road will not be open to general use until the early part of next week.
