L. listed in the new telephone. Of course, they're all busy as "B's", who "T's" open.)

Your P's And Q's

It doesn't seem to matter whether parents christened you Oral or Ossie—just so your initials are "O. L." and to succeed. For proof, O. L. Yates, O. L. No. L. Sutton and O. L. L. listed in the new telephone. Of course, they're all busy as "B's", who "T's" open.)

Haywood Wool Brings An Average Of $60.76 At Sale

Sunday Marks The Summer Solstice - But Who Cares?

Sunday, June 21, the almanac would have us know, is the summer solstice. The day is known more popularly as the beginning of summer and the longest day of the year and is caused simply by the fact of the sun being its greatest distance above the equator. The day is known more popularly as the beginning of summer and the longest day of the year and is caused simply by the fact of the sun being its greatest distance above the equator. Nineteen Haywood County sheep growers received the top price of $60.76 per hundredweight for their wool. These sheep men sold 2,222 pounds of wool that graded clear untied at the Boone wool pool June 17th. All wool (with the exception of three fleeces which graded black) sold for the top price. The black wool sold at 50c per pound.

There were 15 pounds of lamb wool that sold at 56c per pound. The sheep men represented feel that they did a better job of marketing their products this year, and in these times of declining prices it pays the farmers to apply their knowledge of better marketing practices.

Haywood Co-op Issue Commended

Two letters from State and national REA officials showed praise for the issue of The Mountaineer containing the story of the Haywood County Co-operative. Writing to Manager R. C. Sheffield, the director of the Northwest Area Office of the REA at Washington, John W. Asher, Jr., said: "We liked the liberal use of local pictures and local news items. We particularly liked the story explaining the distinctions between your co-op and REA."

Corpening Quits As District Agent

WAYNE CORPENING, former Haywood County Farm Agent, has resigned as Western District Extension agent to join the staff of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in Winston-Salem. Beginning July 1, his successor as district agent will be Wilburn Collins of Asheville.

Corpening will join the bank's agricultural division, according to Archie K. Davis, senior vice president, and "he will have important duties in carrying out a broad farm development program in the bank's trade area."

Collins, who is now operating a 20-cow dairy farm in Buncombe County, has served since 1938 as TVA and Extension farm management supervisor for the western district. Previously he was county agent in Watauga and Alleghany counties. He is the author of a book, "The Farm, North Carolina and the TVA."

Corpening left Haywood County last September, after 16 years' service. During that time he inaugurated the Community Development Program and the Out-of-State Farm Tours. He received the U. S. national distinguished service award for county agents in 1951.

Father's Day 43 Years Old

Sunday will mark the 43rd Father's Day and once again fathers will receive all sorts of presents, inexpensive and otherwise, that they will probably receive bills for. But there's nothing so bad about that because it's something they're used to, anyway. Too often, though, they receive gifts that aren't exactly what they would pick out: neckties that would never be worn; cigarettes, pipe tobacco, or cigars that aren't the right brands; articles of clothing that don't fit.

Needs Of Recreation Center Outlined In Report

A progress report on local recreation facilities was made Wednesday night to the Recreation Commission, representatives of the Board of Aldermen of Hazelwood and Waynesville, and representatives of civic clubs. The report was made by Charles M. Graves, park and recreation engineer of Atlanta, Ga., who is making a survey of what should be and can be done to establish a community recreation center. Any survey, Mr. Graves pointed out, must take into consideration existing facilities and must simply be a presentation of facts and suggestions. The Commission and the people of the community itself must make any decisions.

About 8 sites have been considered, 4 or 5 of them seriously and in detail. Five attributes are necessary: (1) central location as near as possible to the centers of both Hazelwood and Waynesville; (2) as much area as possible, a minimum of 30 acres, Graves said; (3) compatibility with neighborhood; (4) adaptability; and (5) not too expensive. Graves cited the Shelby recreation center, which he planned and which serves that city adequately with 100 acres (45 of these are in a golf course). Drexel and Valdes also were cited as having much used community centers. Members of the Commission reminded the group that in the past the town has in both its water and sewer systems failed to plan adequately for the future, and that they must not make the same mistake by planning the recreation center on too small a scale.
