

Red Cross Blood Bank To Visit Hazelwood 4th

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will make its next visit to this community on August 4, according to an announcement by David Underwood, bloodmobile chairman.

This will be an industrial visit and the blood bank will be set up at the Hazelwood Presbyterian Church from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. The quota has been set at a minimum of 150 pints.

Mr. Underwood has made a special appeal for blood donors at this time since blood is needed for a double purpose. Defense blood will continue to go to armed forces where it is used continually to save lives—and gamma globulin, a product of blood plasma, will go to help in the fight against the crippling effects of polio.

Mrs. Felix Stovall and Mrs. Ben Colkitt will be in charge of the activities of the Grey Ladies.

SHE'S THE FIRST IN A CENTURY—Kathy Loretta Atkins, five days old, naps contentedly in her mother's arms unaware of the stir she's created in the Atkins family in Shelby. Kathy is the first daughter born in the family in three generations. This covers a period of over 100 years, starting with Jerry Atkins, an only son. Then he had an only son, Will. Will had three boys. To these three boys were born 14 sons; Gordon and Charlie had five each, and Archie had four. Of these 14 there are, so far, only two children—Archie's famous granddaughter, Kathy, and Gordon has a son. (AP Wirephoto).

Former Rural Public Health Nurse Receives Coveted Florence Nightingale Medal

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Miss Annabelle Petersen, wearing a lovely periwinkle dress her nephew had bought her, sat on a platform with President Eisenhower to receive the coveted Florence Nightingale Medal for service to the nursing profession.

She is the 23rd American to receive the honor, awarded by the International Committee of the Red Cross to only 36 nurses in the world since 1912.

"Man alive," she told me later, "in all my wild moments, I never thought it would happen to me. I've recommended plenty of others for the award in the past, though."

A vigorous, pleasant, woman who belies her 65 years, Miss Petersen said she has been interested in nursing since she was a child. When she was graduated from the Protestant Deaconess Hospital School of Nursing in Indianapolis, she went into private and hospital nursing, then pioneered in rural public health nursing until 1914, when she joined the Army to serve six years as a nurse.

After the war she went into Red Cross nursing, "rigged up a funny little bag" and bumped around in a Model T visiting isolated sick people in the hills of Southern Indiana and Northern Kentucky. Her flair for organizational and administrative work brought her to a job at National Red Cross headquarters here. From 1938 until her retirement last July, after 32 years of Red Cross service, she served as assistant to the national director of nursing service. One of her biggest jobs was in recruiting some 100,000 nurses for military duty in World War II.

She expects to continue as treasurer and chairman of the finance committee of the board of the American Nurses' Association. As chairman of the finance committee she has a million dollars on which to keep tabs. She is also national chairman of the Committee on Nursing Resources to meet Military and Civil Nursing Needs, directing recruitment of students for nursing schools.

"The nursing situation is pretty tight," she said. "We need more students. Dan Cupid is always in the way. We may have to interest inactive nurses in coming back on duty. With the present situation, we're trying to keep everyone informed and get each to do what she can."

"It takes one of my vintage to recognize how much conditions for nurses have improved. The future is brighter than it's ever been. Nursing is a profession to be proud of. Its returns in personal satisfaction are greater than in any other field, except motherhood."

G.O.P. Chief Was Once A Leading Democrat

SULLIVAN BARNES, new Young Republican chief with his two children Jack, 3, and Emily Ann, 22 months.

By VIRGINIA LITTLE
AP Newsfeatures
SIOUX FALLS, S. D.—Sullivan Barnes, the newly-elected President of the National Young Republican Federation, is a thriving political transplant from the South.

Barnes, 31-year-old Sioux Falls attorney, was a registered democrat in his native Louisiana, but he migrated north and in 1949 was a registered Republican and active in GOP politics on a college level.

Barnes said his main reason for coming to South Dakota was the opportunity it afforded a Southern Democrat to get a start in Republican politics and bring about a realignment of the nation's political parties.

(South Dakota is noted for its strong Republicanism, just as the South is Democratic.)

"My acceptance by the Young Republicans is proof of the GOP's policy of giving everyone an equal chance to work for his beliefs," he says. He resented the leftward drift of the Democratic party and determined to do something about it.

The new Young Republican leader got his first taste of politics as a secretary in the office of Sen. Allen Ellender (D-La.)

It was at that time that he married Julie Bailey of Sioux Falls, who was working as a secretary to former Sen. Chan Gurney (R-S.D.). The Barnes have two children, 3-year-old Jack and 22-months-old blonde Emily Ann.

Barnes said he plans to maintain his office here during his two-year tenure, spending about a week to ten days of every month attending to Young Republican business in Washington.

He is in partnership with another young lawyer, 25-year-old Frank Gibbs, a transplanted Californian. Gibbs and Barnes were classmates and casual acquaintances at the University of South Dakota.

Barnes is the youngest of five brothers. His widowed mother, Mrs. L. H. Barnes, lives in Union Parish, La. His father, who died in 1940, was a newspaper publisher at Union Parish for 20 years and an insurance salesman there at the time of his death.

His brothers include L. H. Barnes, Ft. Worth, Tex., an employee of the Santa Fe railroad; William, Houston, Tex., a business consultant; Fred, Monroe, La., a major in the Louisiana State Police; and Harold, Dallas, Tex., farm machinery salesman.
