My Favorite Stories

By CARL GOERCH
 Mr. J. L. Memory is in a quandary.
 Mr. Memory is connected with Wake Forest College. He is a man who has received a college education, who has been in contact with highly learned men for a number of years, and who has a mind which runs to scientific things.
 But Mr. Memory is puzzled. He has come across something which conflicts with his scientific thoughts and he doesn't know what to make of it.
 He has a white mare which, at times, is inclined to be rather wild. Now any person, with any intelligence whatsoever, knows that witches have a preference for white mares. That's a fact which is well established, regardless of what scientists may say about it.
 One morning, as Mr. Memory was taking the mare out of the stable, a neighbor happened to be passing by. He glanced at the mare and commented sort of casual like: "Well, Mr. Memory, I see the witches have been working your mare again."
 Mr. Memory said: "What do you mean by that?"
 And the man said: "Don't you see that she's all covered with sweat? That means that the witches have been working her all night. They'll do it every time when the moon is full."
 Mr. Memory scoffed at the very idea. He continued to scoff, despite the fact that every morning, after a full moon, he would find the mare covered with sweat. He mentioned the matter jokingly to some other people and was surprised to discover that the other people didn't take it as a joke at all. As a matter of fact, they were surprised at his ignorance about the subject.
 The mare—like all other mares—has a mane. One day, not long ago, Mr. Memory noticed that a part of the mane was plaited and that there was a knot tied in it. He untangled the hairs, brushed the mane smooth, and thought nothing more of it.
 The next morning, he noticed that the mane was plaited and knotted again. The same thing happened on each succeeding morning.
 He mentioned it to an old farmer with whom he happened to be in conversation on the streets of Wake Forest one day. The old man looked at him in mild amusement. "You mean to tell me," he said, "that you don't know what causes that?"
 Mr. Memory confessed his ignorance.
 "The witches have been plaiting that mare's mane," said the farmer. "They'll do it every time. Long as I can remember, it has always been a well-known fact that witches are fond of white mares. Most every white mare is bewitched. Does your mare act kind or wild at times?"
 Mr. Memory admitted that she did.
 The man nodded his head sagely. "That proves it," he said. "But you don't need to worry about it, because practically every white mare is bewitched."
 A couple of weeks ago, Mr. Memory took his mare around to a man who shoes. The mare acted awfully contrary-like and Mr. Memory apologized to the man for the way she was cutting up. The man waved the apology aside. "You don't have to tell me anything about this mare," he said. "I

May Succeed Tobey

REPORTS from New Hampshire indicate that Gov. Hugh Gregg (above), 35, may succeed the late Sen. Charles W. Tobey, who died of a heart attack. This could be done by Gregg's resigning as Governor and being succeeded by the New Hampshire Senate President Lane Dwinell, who then would name Gregg to the Senate post.

Stop, Look, Listen

MONTEREY PARK, Calif. (AP)—A local resident who was up in arms when the city council did not install a stop sign at an intersection now wonders if it was worth all the fuss.
 The unidentified citizen demanded the sign be erected. He said those who do not heed stop signs should be cited, and he took the council to task for not recognizing the need for the sign earlier. The sign finally was erected. One of the first violators: The man who wanted it up in the first place.

Smart Soreheads

If you suffer from headaches you may find some consolation in the fact that you're in distinguished company. An investigation has turned up the information that headaches are far commoner among educated people than among their duller-witted brothers.
 The farthest faint star which can be seen by the Palomar telescope is believed to be seen by light which has been traveling toward the earth for two billion years at the rate of about 186,000 miles a second.

City Slicker Lights

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A resident of rural Choctaw, charged with running a red light, pictured herself today as the victim of the complex big city traffic light system.
 "There's six traffic lights at that intersection," Mrs. Ruby Vern Lovell, 35, told the court. "I couldn't tell which was mine."
 "All you have to do is follow the one in front of you," advised Judge James Demopolos, and fined her $10.
