

Sutton Is Named As Tar Heel Of Year By The State

The current issue of The State, weekly news-magazine of North Carolina, announced the selection of Louis V. Sutton of Raleigh as the "North Carolinian of 1953".

A photograph of Sutton appeared on the cover, and the magazine carried the following editorial comment on the choice:

Louis V. Sutton, president of Carolina Power & Light Company, is presented herewith as the North Carolinian of 1953.

The committee of 12 judges, after deliberating over a field of a score or more nominations, selected Sutton for his significant contributions to the solution of one of North Carolina's greatest problems: The industrial and commercial development of North Carolina; and especially to that development in areas of greatest need.

His accomplishments included:

(1) Acquiring a poorly equipped and badly financed company (Tide Water) and bringing an unlimited supply of power, better service and lower rates to an industry-deficient section of southeastern North Carolina. Result was a 30 per cent increase in consumption during the first full year of operation after the merger.

(2) Building of CP&L's largest

Rotarians Hear About Manufacture Of Paper And Pulp

Louis Gates, chemist at Champion Paper and Fibre Company, was the speaker at Rotary Friday. He gave an illustrated talk to the club on the manufacture of paper, starting with the wood in the forests and going on to the loading of freight cars with the finished products.

Mr. Gates explained the varied amounts of ingredients used daily by Champion in the manufacture of 800 tons of paper and pulp. The ingredients ranged from 35 million gallons of water to 110 tons of salt, plus coal, lime and 1500 cords of wood.

Each member was given a chart which outlined each step of manufacture of the paper from the forests to the railroad car. The chemist explained the processes, and the chemical reaction in every phase of manufacture, from the time the wood is debarked, cut into chips and cooked at 350 degrees for three hours.

This was one of several series of programs the club had had on the various industries in this area. Paul McElroy, program chairman, was in charge of the program.

generating plant near Wilmington, thus boldly signalling to prospective industry the self-sufficiency of the area as regards electricity. This plant was part of a program which in ten years is investing $200,000,000 in the Carolinas, already has doubled the productive capacity of the company, and has kept available a reserve of power ready for the industries sought for the territory.

(3) His company, in the face of inflationary price increases, has held the line on power rates, another factor in some types of industrial expansion.

(4) He has directly and aggressively participated, through his company's industrial department, in the state's promotion program, and has been responsible for acquisition of several plants.

(5) He launched a territory-wide "Finer Carolina" program which has stimulated community betterment, including industrial and commercial expansion, civic improvements, and soil and water conservation.

So much for the work of 1953 and the years immediately prior to it. The State agrees with the judges that few individuals have done as much through vision and courage to utilize their business for the good of the commonwealth.

But those who know Louis Sutton, also know that he had made other lasting contributions. He took a small utility out of the status of a holding-company subsidiary and in five years built it up into a great Carolina enterprise, as indigenous in its operations and attitudes as any company in this state. In the doing, he demonstrated that not only could an investor-owned and privately managed utility adequately meet the power needs of a state, but also that a great corporation could be humanized, kept close to the people, and be responsive to their aspirations. Many other North Carolinians have the enlightened view that they will benefit through the general economic good health of their neighbors. Louis Sutton long ago nailed this motto in the pilot house of his ship: "Our future is the future of the area we serve."

Ghost Town Stirs

JEROME, Ariz. (AP)—The nation's largest zinc producer has taken a million dollar lease on the life of this ghost town. New Jersey Zinc Corp. has signed a contract with Verde Exploration, Ltd., to search for copper deposits here.

Jerome was a lustrous, wealthy mining town until Phelps Dodge Corp. pulled out in 1950 in belief the copper reserves had played out.

Reporter Adds Weight From Many Diplomatic Dinners

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Eating my lunch in nine different languages and drinking tea in a score of others, I not only helped promote world fellowship but a few extra pounds around the middle.

Only in Washington could one savor the native dishes of so many different countries prepared, cooked and served by wives of top diplomats of those nations. This gourmet roundelay took place at the third annual Food Fair of Nations to raise funds for YWCAs around the world.

In some instances the men put in a helping hand. Pritchi Singh, second secretary of the Indian embassy, led me to the colorful Indian booth, where his pretty English wife, Joan, and darkeyed Mrs. Jagdish Kaker, wife of the first secretary, Mrs. Sati Sujan and Mrs. Bishna Mathur, wives of other officials, served me appetizers of tiny meat pies, known as kabacos, and samashas, or potato balls.

At the Netherlands booth, I had a cup of Dutch pea soup served by blonde Mrs. Rolf van Baarde, wife of the first secretary, and Mrs. Egbert de Vries, wife of the chief economist of the World Bank. Mrs. J. W. Van Kretchmar, wife of the agricultural attaché, passed me some oliebollet, a doughnut with raisins and citron usually reserved for New Year's eve.

I tasted the famous Swedish meat balls at the booth presided over by Mrs. Stig Wennerstrom, wife of the Swedish air attaché. I also bought some pepparkakor, which are like our gingerbread boys, and a toy horse from Dalarna. I pepped up my appetite with some Bacalao a la Mexicana at the Mexican booth — a hot green chili stuffed with pig's feet and covered with melted cheese. At the Brazilian booth I sampled turkey with a black bean concoction and drank a cup of coffee. I had my main dish with the Argentines — a marvelous business of sweet potato, Irish potato, corn on the cob, green peppers, peaches and

Entrance Is Unauspicious

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa. (AP)—The intruders who broke into Shively's Dairy here one night might have done better had they gone through a window.

After smashing in the panel of the office door, the intruders turned the office upside down but left without finding any money.

An envelope containing $100 had been shoved through a slot in the door but went unnoticed by the burglars because it was hidden under a piece of the paneling they knocked from the door.

Death Prediction Accurate

ASHLAND, Neb. (AP)—Myron T. Fay 76, often told friends that "when I die, my dog will die too." Both Fay and his inseparable companion were killed when hit by a car as they walked down a highway.

Office Is Pleasant

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There's a new bar here called "The Office." The name's made a hit with businessmen. It allows them while tipping to telephone the little woman and say, with a clear conscience: "Dear, I'm doing some things at the office."

other things. I ate my salad with the Chileans, a picante de pates, made of pig's feet, onions, hard boiled eggs and ripe olives, which I washed down with Chilean wine. I catered to my sweet tooth at the Greek booth, where Mrs. Phedon Annino Cavaliarato, wife of the Greek Consular, gave me some baklavas, or honey cakes. I finally found myself in the International Refreshment Enclosure (as if I needed refreshment) and I couldn't resist a cup of tea. Then I went home to an international tummy-ache.
