much as three miles out of town has proven more satisfactory for many of the centers."

The meeting, when thrown open to a general discussion, and found every lay spokesman favorable towards the plan. They included:

A. J. Hutchins, former head Canton School—"I represent the Canton Civitan Club. The representative group here manifests the interest of the citizens over the county, and the board of commissioners want to know if we want it before they spend our money. I feel they have the answer here tonight."

C. C. Francis, chairman board of commissioners—"There is a county-wide representative group here tonight, and the matter is just in time for the budget. This board has spent a lot of your money for a hospital expansion, new schools, and are doing all we can to bring Haywood to the front. We have just painted the present quarters of the health department, and can promise you that we will give the matter due consideration, and that right soon."

Frank Davis, member of board—"I was a member of the board when the first health department was established in Haywood, and I am glad. It is definitely a sign of progress in the county. We are in good financial condition, and can afford the cost of the health center. I was for it last spring, and for it now."

Jarvis H. Allison, member of board—"I was on the board when we put on the first milk inspector, and we took a lot of criticism, but we cut down on the fly population of the county by the program."

"We could be moving just a little too fast. The health department now has a budget of $44,000 (not all of this is a county expenditure) and I find myself asking the question, can we go further?"

"Every agency seems to be growing, and maybe too fast."

"In the past few years we have added to the debt of the county for schools and hospitals, a total of $2,225,000. Our auditor says it takes $158,000 per year to pay the principal and interest on our debt now."

"I ask myself this question, can we get our money's worth by going into this at this time. I am against more taxes."

"If the project is worth it, and the people want it, then it is OK with me."

"I can't feel that this is quite a representative group of Haywood here tonight."

Mrs. W. A. Hyatt—"The health department would be far more efficient in modern quarters. And their efficiency might be the means of nipping a disease epidemic in the early stages, and have the citizens of this county much loss of time and expense."

"I earnestly plead for a health center."

Jonathan Woody, banker—"There is a definite need, and Haywood county can afford the health center. What more need be said?"

Bill Prevost, industrialist—"We talk a lot about health and keeping well, so it seems to me timely, and a good investment to provide for the center to meet our needs today."

James G. McKinley, plant manager, Dayton Rubber—"A modern health center is one of the finest things we could have. I know that the people want it, because I have heard them express their views. But I ask you to call on the president of our labor union, Lloyd Cogdill, and get his views, because he is in close contact with our people at Dayton."

Lloyd Cogdill, president Dayton union—"We are 100 per cent for the health center, and our group represents about 2,000 people. We feel it is essential."

L. K. Barber, superintendent A.

Draft Board Classifies 63 County Men

Sixty-three Haywood County men were classified by Selective Service Board 45 at a meeting at the courthouse this week. They included:

Class 1-A (available for induction) — Charles Ray Bryant, James Edward Hardin, Claude William Smith, Robert Patton Price, Haskie John Haynes, William Houston Rich, James Harold Christopher, William Junior Watson, Jule Clark, Galor Surret, James Lawrence Stepp, Willard Justice, D. A. Whitner, Reeves Gerome Sanford, Ray Parks, Arthur Brooks, Willis Talmadge Conard, Robert Hugh Franklin, Grady Rathbone, Riley Greene, Charlie G. Frady, J. P. Lance, Wade Verlyn Rhinehart, Ted Johnson, Thomas T. Rogers, James G. Bradley, Orie Bennion Patton, Billy Brown, William Wils Woody, James Hoover Conard, Vinson Ledford, Calvin L. Bradley, Johnnie Berry Quinn, Luther Ledford.

Class 1-C (Enlisted)—David Leroy Huffstetter, John Morgan Davis, William Lee Burnette, Hansel Howell Taylor, Floyd Eldon Trull.

Class 1-C (Discharged)—Buddy Leo Franklin, Thomas Glen Gaddy, Everett Lane Cochran, Roger Carroll Woodard, Sumner Wendell Hill, Jerry Lewis Allen, Phillip B. Higgins, James Harry Moody, William Howard Body, Jr., Norburn Rich Smathers.

Class 1-C (Reserve) — George

C. Lawrence Leather Company—"This is a growing county, and the present health quarters are far too small. This looks like an opportunity to get a modern health center, and it sounds to me like a sound proposition."

R. H. Davis, principal Reynolds high school—"Our wisest investment is in health, and for that reason, I certainly hope the commissioners give us the health center."

W. J. Stone, mayor of Canton—"We would accept the center in Canton, but would not want to appear selfish. We see a definite need, and can't see where we can go wrong on the proposed health center. We are proud of the work the department is doing in Canton, and know its importance."

Mrs. Sam Queen, superintendent welfare department—"In my work I find there is a growing need for the health center. Under present conditions none of us can afford to be sick."

Gerald Fish, mayor Clyde—"My people are for the health center—it is needed."

Dr. Boyd Owen, physician—"Conservatism might lead to backwardness. The health department last year did not spend the full amount set up in the budget. In fact, almost enough was saved to pay a substantial portion of the county's part toward the health center."

Mrs. M. G. Stamey, school supervisor—"I speak for two groups—the Business and Professional Womens Club, and the school children. The club has endorsed the project, and the children need the services offered by a health center. I feel it a good investment."

M. D. Watkins, president Rotary—"The Rotary Club is made up of about 50 progressive members. They will, I am sure, formally approve the project at their meeting Friday. You have heard several of our members speak tonight."

James H. Howell, Jr., representing American Legion Post 47—"This organization was one of the first to back the project last spring. We are of the same opinion tonight that the great need still exists for a modern health center."

The board of commissioners of Polk county attended the meeting, and were in conference with several Haywood leaders after the meeting.
