★ HONEST

★ ABLE

★ TRUSTWORTHY

★ Public Life

Senator Lennon was judge of New Hanover Recorder's Court for eight years . . . He won, on the bench, a widespread reputation for fairness, and he also was noted for his efforts to help the underprivileged who came before him . . . He was elected to the State Senate twice, serving in 1947 and 1951. Another county held the Senate seat in the intervening 1949 session through a rotation agreement . . . Lennon considers his most important legislative accomplishment to be his sponsorship of a bill in 1951 which increased workmen's compensation benefits . . .

★ As U.S. Senator

Lennon early became active in the Democratic Party . . . In the early 1930's he organized clubs of Young Democrats, then just getting started, throughout southeastern North Carolina . . .

On July 10, 1953, Lennon was appointed to serve out the unexpired term of the late Senator Willis Smith . . . 10,000 of his fellow-townsmen gathered at the train station in Wilmington to wish him Godspeed when he left for Washington on July 14 to be sworn in the next day by Vice President Richard Nixon . . . It was a spontaneous demonstration of affection and confidence unique in North Carolina political history. Veteran Senators in Washington have praised the quick and able manner in which Lennon entered into and performed the complex duties of his office . . . His training in legislative matters, his keen judgment on public issues, are reflected in the effective and impressive way he has served in the U. S. Senate.

HE HAS RARELY MISSED A VOTE OR A ROLL CALL . . . He doesn't straddle issues. He takes his stand and sticks by it in the finest Southern tradition . . . Senator Lennon is a lifelong Jeffersonian Democrat . . .

Senator Lennon gets to his office each morning by 8 o'clock and works there or in the Senate chamber until after midnight . . . He takes the hard routine handily because he is young and vigorous . . . Although he is in the midst of a campaign to keep his Senate seat, Senator Lennon continues to look after his duties in Washington . . . The needs of his constituents in North Carolina come first with him.
