Here's what happened and it happened a number of years ago s you can tell by the car prices: Mr. Garvin walks into the Carolina Buick Company in Raleigh (by way of illustration, although the actual episode took place elsewhere) and talks to Mr. Hoover, the manager, about buying a new Buick automobile

"How much is that one over there?" asks Mr. Garvin,

"Eleven hundred and fifty." "I believe that's exactly the model I want," says Mr. Garvin, "Will you take my check for it?"

"Well, Mr. Garvin; you see, don't know you, but if you can secure proper identification, I'll be very glad to take it."

"You know Roland Mumford.

"Suppose you call him up about the check.

So. Mr. Hoover goes to the phone and calls up Mr. Mumford.
