...to the Waynesville Mountaineer) Rebecca Sutton, nine year daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesson, Route 1, Waynesville, is one of fifty-five children who attended the First Annual Easter Seal Camp for Crippled Children at Camp New Hope, near Chapel Hill, for two weeks. The camp placed special emphasis on physical and recreational therapy. The schedule of the campers was similar to that for other summer camps with the usual amount of swimming, handicraft, picnics, and limited games and hiking trips. Braces and crutches seemed to have very little effect upon the participation of the children in the games and activities, although many of the games were modified in order that everyone in the group could join. Miss Esther Carter, Camp Nurse for the Society, said that the number of scratches and falls treated during the period differed little from that of regular camps.

Many Will Take Part In Events

Platform entertainment during Labor Day afternoon promises to be more talented and colorful than ever before in the long history of the annual event, program leaders said.

An array of talent has been booked for the program. Fred Ferguson, general chairman of this department of the day's celebration, has announced.

Among the square dance teams already booked for the twilight dancing program are Ecusta, Canton Recreation Park, Bethel, Great Smoky Mountains, Bryson City, the Echo Inn Cloggers, national clogging champions of Hendersonville; the Connemara Farms, and the Waynesville Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Pigeon Valley Ramblers and Taft Crawford's band of Canton will be the staff bands for the platform programs, Ferguson said.

The Mathis sisters from Waterville and the popular Metcalf family from Flag Pond, Tenn., will do their specialty clog dancing numbers.

Charles Haynie and Peggy Norris will do a lot of solo singing of mountain ballads.

Fred Roper and his family trio have been booked for several numbers during the afternoon. Other musical groups are being contacted to round out the full platform program, Ferguson said.

Square dance teams from every nook and corner of Western North Carolina will be on hand for twilight square dancing features.

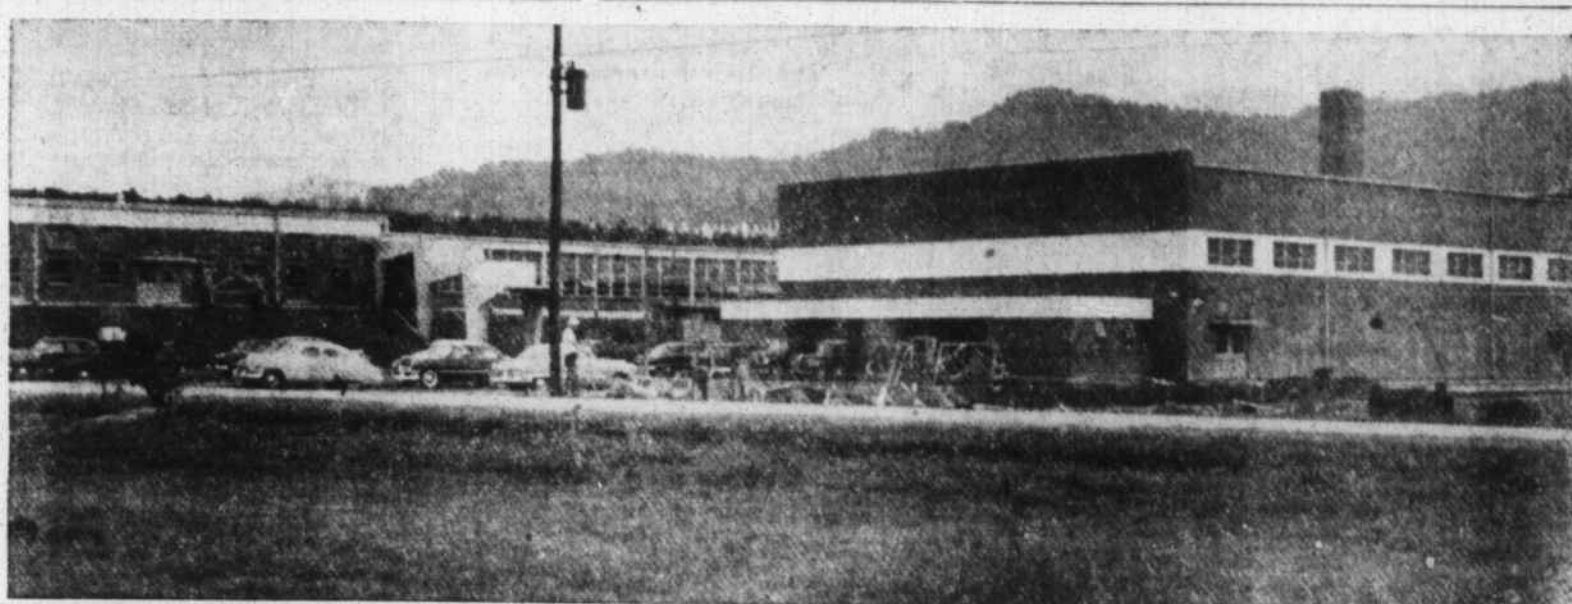

In addition to square dancing, there will be plenty of individual entertainers plus many quartets, trios and choirs singing in close harmony during the afternoon program to be staged on the Canton High School athletic field.

Many contests, carrying a lot of human interest, have also been scheduled for the platform program.

Pet Show Set For Friday In Canton

About 100 entries are expected for the annual Pet Show of the Labor Day program at Canton.

the show, said more youngsters than ever are asking for information about the show.

The show will be held Friday afternoon, starting at four o'clock, at the high school stadium. In the event of rain, the show will move into the Armory.

Matthews said, "The Show Will Go On," regardless of the weather.

Canton's Bridle and Saddle Club is sponsor of the annual Horse Show for Labor Day at Canton, which now gives promise of being a colorful and exciting show, as many entries are expected before the show begins Monday at one o'clock.

The horse show will be held again at the O'd Champion Nursery grounds.

Canton's Bridle and Saddle Club is sponsoring the horse show which will include 15 events and the awarding of 15 trophies and 120 ribbons. W. W. Morgan, president of the club, said that a Palomino Class for the benefit of lovers of Palomino horses, will be added to the group of horse show events for the first time.

Miss Nancy Jones of Lake Lure will give a special act with her trick horse again this year. She has been a favorite with the show for several years, Morgan said.

C. A. Buchanan will be general manager for the show and Mrs. Bill Turner will serve as show secretary.

The three horse show judges will be Lloyd Tate of Blowing Rock, hunter and jumper classes; H. B. Kelly of Hendersonville, gaited and walking horses; and Mrs. Elsie Edwards of Waynesville, saddle and equitation classes.

Samuel A. Bingham, Jr. of Asheville will be ring master and Read Wilson of Radio Station WWNC in
