Observe Allotments Strictly To Receive Price Supports

North Carolina farmers are now required to, stay within their allotments for every commodity produced in order to be eligible for price supports on any commodity and to be eligible for federal cost-sharing under the Agricultural Conservation Program.

Fred R. Keith, chairman of the state ASC committee, explains that the Agriculture Act of 1954, recently passed by Congress, makes across-the-board compliance the law of the land.

Total compliance affects farmers in another way. Farmers with more than 10 acres diverted from the production of allotment crops will not be able to increase their total plantings of cash crops.

This total allotment program, although previously announced by the Secretary of Agriculture, may be liberalized as a result of drought conditions prevalent throughout the country. The Agricultural Act of 1954, in effect, advised the secretary to use discretion in placing total compliance provisions into effect by making it on an area basis, avoiding drought areas.

State College Answers Timely Farm Questions

QUESTION: Are the organized feeder calf sales a good place to buy beef calves in North Carolina? ANSWER: Yes. For one thing the animals sold in these sales are uniform in quality and type. They have been selected by experts who know their business and each animal will have been dehorned, vaccinated and castrated.

QUESTION: What happens to the money set aside for soil conservation if farmers fail to use it? ANSWER: The money is turned back to the general fund of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. On July 31 this year North Carolina farmers had nearly $5 million of federal funds approved for conservation practices; a recent check showed that less than $1 million has been used, or reported on.

QUESTION: Some insect is cutting twigs off my pecan trees. What is it and what can I do? ANSWER: The insect is known as the twig girdler. The only practical control is to pick up and burn the twigs as they fall. These twigs contain eggs, so by burning the twigs you can destroy eggs that would hatch more beetles for next year. You will also need to burn twigs from hickory and persimmon trees as the same insect attacks these two trees as well.

Vanishing Iceman

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Ever wonder what is becoming of the iceman? J. D. Owens, 23, Wichita, Kan., who owned an ice company at Wichita, took a cue from declining ice sales in his rural deliveries. A check showed his customer were buying refrigerators.

River Far Below

The famous Horse Shoe Bend, 20 miles from Franklin, in the Little Tennessee River, is found on the drive from Franklin to Bryson City. This bit of scenery is approximately 1,000 feet in a sheer drop below the road bed.
