THE OLD HOME TOWN

SO THIS IS NEW YORK BY NORTH CALLAHAN

The Veep entertained a group of us at the Book and Author luncheon at the Astor Hotel. Perhaps I should call him "The Junior Senator from Kentucky" as that is what Aiben Barkley now is. Whatever you call him, he is a genial statesman and youthful-looking Kentucky gentleman. His excuse for being with us was the fact that he has also written a book which some one jokingly referred to as "a joke book," entitled "That Reminds Me."

The Veep reminded us that even though he is a mere 76 years old, he can hold his own with the best of them—including his recent marriage to a pretty girl. Barkley is 76 and he hooted at the idea that he is old. Winston Churchill is 80, he pointed out; Gladstone was 84 when he was prime minister of Great Britain — and "Noah did not get married until he was 125" — a typical Barkley observation. He told of his busy days as Vice President and said that one day when Mr. Churchill was visiting the White House, that the Veep called up FDR and asked if it would be all right for the two houses of Congress to give the prime minister a luncheon. "Please do," the Veep quipped Mr. Roosevelt as saying, "He is so active around here I can't get any work done!"

On this same Washington visit, Mr. Barkley went on, cherubic-faced Winston Churchill was crossing the street outside the Capital Building one day with Mr. Barkley, when a young mother gushed up to him and said he looked just like her baby. With hardly a pause, the great phase-maker replied, "Madam, all babies look like me!" Which reminds me that my autographed picture of Church ill, painted by Texas-artist Doug las Chandor seems to me a much better likeness than that ugly-looking one recently presented to the prime minister on his 80th birthday in England. But old Winnie took the thing good-naturedly — and it takes a real big man to overlook a bad likeness of himself.

Junior Senator Barkley told of the late Thomas B. Reed of Maine who was speaker of the House of Representatives near the turn of the century, and who wanted to be President but was beaten by McKinley. Reed retired from public office as a result. But before that, he was confronted, one day, in the House, by a diminutive Congressman from Georgia who was going to debate with Reed. Shaking his fist in the latter's face, the little fellow exclaimed, "Why in this debate, I'm going to chew you up and swallow you!" Replied Reed, "If you do, you'll have more brains in your stomach than you've got in your head." Striking a serious note, however, the former Vice President urged more training for leadership in our nation and said that such leadership should be better rewarded. He stated that Senators and Con-er on this delightful program. The puckish sage of the airways reported that since he had written a book, he had found many relatives he had never heard of before — all wanting free copies of the volume. He good-naturedly but pointedly threw off on his publisher for not promoting his book and said the only two things they had done were to have one boy go around Grand Central Station with a copy under his arm, another going from house to house shouting the title of it—"Treadmill to Oblivion"—through folks' keyholes.

"My name is Fred Allen," he under-stated, "and I come from a long line of undistinguished people. My father was a nobody, my mother a frustrated baby-sitter. We lived in a town in New England so small that the electricity was self-service. One day I was standing beside the single railroad track with my pockets full of nails, when a freight train passed carrying on one car a large magnet. So you see, ladies and gentlemen, I did not come here voluntarily—but was sort of drawn to New York."

When the Erie canal was first built it was only four feet deep along much of its length. A skunk produces about a third of an ounce of the odorous chemical it uses for defense in a week.
