Brando's Face Is Made Over For 'Waterfront'

But for one line in Budd Schulberg's brass-knuckled screen play for Columbia Pictures' "On the Waterfront," Marlon Brando would have been disgraced for his appearance in the film as one who lives by jungle law, an ex-fighter and small-time waterfront hoodlum in the shadow world of cold-blooded dockside murder, in the powerful new drama of love and terror at the Strand Theatre Sunday.

"On the Waterfront" also stars Karl Malden and Lee J. Cobb and Eva Marie Saint making her haunting screen debut.

The Schulberg line is "Look, I haven't been banged up."

This is what Brando, on their first date in the brutally realistic film, tells Miss Saint, whose refreshing blonde beauty makes a spectacular contrast to the actor's rugged appeal. Make-up man Fred Ryle had designed a new bridge for

Brando's nose which, in his opinion, had a wonderfully artistic smashed-in look, in keeping with Brando's background of violence in the ring and out of it. Producer Sam Spiegel, director Elia Kazan, Brando and Ryle huddled over the Schulberg line and decided to keep it in the script at the cost of Brando's "new" nose. But they felt an ex-fighter would carry some facial souvenir of his former trade and so they agreed on scar tissue over Brando's eyes from too many "eggs."

Red Bank Baptists To Have Singing

The regular first Sunday singing will be held at the Red Bank Baptist Church, Sunday evening, February 6 beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

A number of singing groups are expected to participate with Ray Parker of Canton in charge. A cordial invitation is extended to all singers and the public to attend.

Christmas celebrations were banned in Massachusetts from 1659 to 1681.

Brando's nose which, in his opinion, had a wonderfully artistic smashed-in look, in keeping with Brando's background of violence in the ring and out of it. Producer Sam Spiegel, director Elia Kazan, Brando and Ryle huddled over the Schulberg line and decided to keep it in the script at the cost of Brando's "new" nose.
