Some Garments Tagged Washable Need Extra Care

Some of the great bargains tagged "100 per cent washable" aren't always a good washing bet.

It is true that some of these fabrics may be washable before they are fashioned into a garment, but washing performance depends on the way the garment is constructed and trimmed by the manufacturer and whether thread and fasteners are colorfast, experts advise.

Home economists advise observing the following points:

1. Employ caution if the garment bears no instructions for washing.
2. Examine the article closely to make sure it is well made and that seams, hem and button holes are well-finished.
3. Observe the trimmings. Is the applique or embroidery of a contrasting color and is the fancy patch and colored thread used washfast? Is the beading the type that must be removed before dry cleaning?

If in doubt, wash a colored or color-trimmed garment by itself. Turn the temperature control of your automatic gas water heater down to 100 degrees (warm). Wash only three minutes; spin dry one minute.

An all white article should be washed in 150 to 160 degree water (very hot) but washing and spinning time should be half the usual time.

Wash garments you are wary of in warm soapsuds or have them dry cleaned.

Bake a package of cake mix in two layers. Split one layer in half to make two thin layers and sandwich together with prepared packaged vanilla pudding; top with chocolate frosting. Top the remaining cake layer with peneche frosting and save for another meal.
