town department store, Bruno Zirato went down to Duke University the other day to produce Perry Como's special spring radio show and was embarrassed, he said. Bruno happens to be a 30-year-old alumnus of Duke, and likes very much to visit his alma mater. But his complaint was, "Every time I go down there, the undergraduates call me 'sir' and my wife starts putting on airs and calling herself my child bride."

Strolling along the lower East Side, I was again impressed—one should perhaps say depressed—by the bums on the Bowery, the slums surrounding it, and the general litter and disorder of this poor part of town. The old elevated railroad which darkens the street and shudders while its shabby trains roar overhead and drown out the sounds of human activity, adds to the somberness of the section. But there is a bright side. Some pretty good people came from here. One of the friendliest fellows I've met, Jimmy Duranty, is one. Also Al Smith, George Gershwin, Jerome Kern, Sigmund Romberg and Eddie Cantor started on the East Side and never forgot it even after they reached the heights of fame.

At that, it is better than the off-stage prompter who we used to hear whispering in the wings when some actor forgot his lines. Delbert Mann, one of the leading young television directors, told me of the prize line-fluffer of them all, John Barrymore, who had a helper stand off-camera with his lines on a blackboard, in case the star had been out too late the night before and forgot. One such morning, Barrymore came in for a movie scene in which he had just one word to say—"No!" He called for his blackboard. The director insisted he had only one word to say, why a blackboard? "Well, you never know," Barrymore roared, "I just might say 'Yes!'"

Child Ties Into Job

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. (AP) — In 1953, Barbara (Bambi) Constantine, 9, made her daddy, Dr. Frank Constantine, a bow tie out of felt, an assortment of beads, and rhinestones.

Just as a gag, he wore it to a cocktail party. Friends liked it and told others who passed the word.

Today Bambi bow ties are sold in Princeton, New York and Palm Beach. The little blond girl has earned enough to buy a television set and is pricing pianos.

Bambi makes a creation a day. A woman helps her stitch them and Bambi is looking around for a high school girl as a second assistant.

Alan Ladd Stars In 'Drum Beat' Coming Sunday

Alan Ladd in an action drama, "Drum Beat," in CinemaScope and WarnerColor, will be seen Sunday at the Strand Theatre. Filmed by Jaguar Productions for Warner Bros., "Drum Beat" is the adventure story of a young frontiersman's fight to bring peace to the Northern California mountain territory. Delmer Daves produced and directed the film from his original screen-play. Co-starring in "Drum Beat" are Audrey Dalton and Marisa Pavan. Robert Keith and Rodolfo Acosta are featured.

Alan Ladd plays a young frontiersman who is commissioned to negotiate a peace with the Modoc Indians, but, led by their renegade chief, Captain Jack, the Indians begin a series of raids which threatens to engulf the entire Northwestern territory in battle. Lured into ambush by the Modoc chief, Ladd is almost killed but recovers in time to bring the Modoc badman to justice.

This year, more than 235,000 Americans will die of cancer.
