Extension Service; and F. H. Enloe, field representative for the state ASC.

Haywood burley producers were told that a "yes" vote in the April 28 referendum will be for the retention of price supports and quotas on burley tobacco.

If the proposal passes by a two-thirds majority, burley tobacco will be supported at 90 per cent of parity at not less than 46.2 cents per pound.

The proposal also calls for the increasing of the penalty from 50 to 75 per cent on last year's average on excess tobacco — which would be approximately 39 cents a pound.

Allotment reductions to be made this year are 25 per cent for all growers with 8 of an acre or more. Those with 7 and 6 will be cut 10 per cent, while those with 5 or less will not be cut this year.

Floyd Fisher, chairman of the county ASC, was in charge of the meeting.

Easter Mishap Brings Change In Traffic Box

The Mountaineer's traffic accident box on page 1 was changed today to reflect the results of an accident that occurred on Easter Sunday.

The Mountaineer did not learn of the accident until Wednesday.

Waynesville police reported that Bill Frady of Waynesville suffered a bruised jaw and cut on the head when his car struck another car driven by Joe Todd below the postoffice on Church St., and then ran into the Smathers building on the north side of the street.

Damage to the building was slight, but damage to Frady's car was estimated at $250. He was charged with reckless driving.

The accident was investigated by Patrolmen Francis Reece and Arthur Paul Evans of the Waynesville Police Department.

The lentil was one of the first plants to be brought under cultivation by human beings, students believe.

stations, hospital, courthouse, dam at Lake Junaluska, and key bridges.

By 9:30 all but four or five of Tank Company's 79 men had reported to the Waynesville Armory. Those not present were in places where they could not be informed of the alert order. The time and date of the mobilization were kept secret until last night.

Tank Company's roster includes men from several Western North Carolina communities, including Brevard, Cullowhee, and Spring Creek. A third of the company was kept at the armory; the remainder was on patrol.

The 30th Signal Company at Canton, commanded by Lt. Wayne Smathers, was in radio contact with Washington throughout the alert, which ended at 10:30 p.m. in North Carolina.

Two new units of the Third Battalion, 120th Infantry, also took part on the test mobilization. At Hendersonville, 38 out of 40 men in Company L reported for duty, while 31 of 34 were on hand at Sylva from Company I, designated as the battalion's reserve.

The Air National Guard with both jets and propeller-driven planes, joined ground units of the Guard in the alert.

Reports Heard At Quarterly WNCAC Meet In Andrews

Every agency reporting at the quarterly meeting of the Western North Carolina Associated Communities on Tuesday in Andrews, showed enthusiasm and optimism for the summer and fall.

The promise of a record breaking influx of visitors to the mountains was reflected in a series of reports made by officials representing all phases of the tourist and travel industry.

Present were more than 150 representatives from a dozen counties in the mountain region, ranging from Buncombe to Cherokee.

Visitor inquiries were reported 15 to 20 per cent ahead of the same period last year, and the reports reflected unusual optimism for the area as a whole.

Officials of the Cherokee Historical Association reported that inquiries and reservations for "Unto These Hills," the Cherokee Indian drama which opens June 25 and runs nightly except Mondays through Sept. 5, are 10 to 15 per cent ahead of last year which was a record season.

Shows Increase

They said that the Museum of the Cherokee Indian, which is also sponsored by the association, has shown a big increase in attendance during the 10 days it has been open.

On the basis of a record-breaking tourist season in Florida, officials predicted that "Unto These Hills" and Oconaluftee Indian Village, which opens May 14, should have an excellent season.

Charles Douglas of Brevard reported that the Transylvania Music Camp already has received more registrants than it had for the entire season last year when all records were broken.

Douglas said prospects for the Brevard Music Festival, which is held the last three weekends in August, are excellent and "we anticipate the best season in history."

A 56-member faculty for the Transylvania Music Camp which has made Brevard the summer music capital of the South, is the best that has yet been available, Douglas said.

John Parris of Sylva, president of Western North Carolina Highlanders, the regional promotional organization sponsored by WNCAC, reported that inquiries coming into the regional office at Waynesville are 15 to 20 per cent ahead of last year.

There is every indication, he said, that Western North Carolina is going to enjoy one of its best seasons, if not the best.

He reported that the 1955 issue of the Western North Carolina Vacation Map, which has been "so well received by visitors," will be available within the next two weeks.

In a report on the Cherokee Historical Association's projects, Parris said paid reservations for tickets to the drama had been made earlier this year than in any season since "Unto These Hills" opened six years ago.

Carroll E. White of Bryson City, general manager of the Cherokee Historical Association, reported that the association's new arboretum and nature trails would be open to the public May 14 and that the recent cold snap, which did so much damage to the region, did not affect many of the 18,000 shrubs and plants that had been set out.

The session was presided over by Beekman Huger of Canton, vice president of WNCAC, in the absence of president Joe Jennings who is now living in Washington, D. C.

W. Curtis Russ, director of WNCAC, attended, as did A. J. Hutchins, of the Civitan Club, Canton, along with the vice president, Beekman Huger, also of Canton.

trucks have been picking up.

There is a lot of painting under way in all parts of the community, and after the recent warm days, painting has again claimed the attention of many a homeowner.

In several sections of town there has been noticeable activity in clearing off vacant lots, and in some instances, the burning off of rough ground.

The program is being sponsored by the Civic and Professional Division of the Chamber of Commerce, with Miss Lou Elva Eller, general chairman.

Today has been designated as the day for cleaning off vacant lots, and trimming shrubbery.

Friday will have special emphasis placed on the Litterbug Program through the schools, while Saturday has been set aside for landscaping day.

The community-wide cleanup committee is composed of Miss Elie, chairman, T. E. Robinett, A. F. Ledbetter, W. C. Russ, Ken Fry, G. C. Ferguson, Miss Mary Cornwell, Mrs. Gladys Wright, Bill Burgin, Mrs. Wayne Deitz.

Mrs. Fred Allison, Mrs. J. L. Edwards, Mrs. J. A. Bowen, Mrs. F. E. Worthington, Mrs. Louise Liner, Mrs. Virgil Smith, and Mrs. David Hyatt.

Ned Tucker, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce said that rat poison was available from the county agent's office.

"Now is the logical time to put this poison out and kill off the pesky and destructive rodents," Tucker said.

According to fraternity spokesman, Delta Sigma Pi alumni in Western North Carolina are invited to attend the dinner meeting.

Following the dinner, a reception for the visitors will be given by Beta Sigma Phi sorority of Waynesville.

The UNC group, made up of students in the School of Business Administration, were scheduled to leave Chapel Hill today for a tour of Western North Carolina industries — to include plants of American Enka Corporation, Champion Paper and Fibre Company, and the Ecusta Paper Corporation at Brevard.
