Election Sidelights

Officers said there were fewer disturbances than in any election they could recall in the past 20 years. While interest was keen, everyone behaved wonderfully, the police reported.

Mrs. Ruth Kelly, registrar for precinct one, Waynesville, called every one of the 1,725 ballots cast. The tabulating began at 7:10 and the last ballot was read at 1:15—a straight stretch of 6 hours and 5 minutes.

About five tabulators did the writing.

Clyde was the first in with a complete count, having completed their tabulation by 7:15. Precinct two—Allens Creek—was second, at about 9, with Canton and Waynesville precinct one much later.

Aunt Ida Mullis began her day Tuesday at 4:43 a.m. At 2 a.m. Wednesday she was as spry and interested as any of the 100 people at the city hall. Despite her 85 years of age, she cracked jokes and delighted in telling how she "barely endured" that many Democrats all day. She had a crossword puzzle book, and said she worked on it when the tabulating got dull.

The count between Boyd and Way for mayor of Waynesville ran a nip-and-tuck affair. At midnight in 118 votes tabulated, each got 59. Neither got more than three ahead in that one period.

Way began nosing ahead, very slowly, and built up a lead of 98

Earlier in the evening Boyd was ahead by about 32 votes.

by 1:15.

Speculation and predictions were being given away free as the count narrowed down to just a difference of four or five.

The women of the B and PW Club in charge of the Cancer drive "made hay while the sun was shining" Tuesday, as they had collecting stations at the voting precincts to collect donations from all passers-by.

Some optimistic soul tried stuffing the ballot box at Precinct One—they put in a marked
