United Fund

but not to handle it.

"We organized in August and by November had raised our quota of over $30,000," Dr. Matthews said.

"The United Fund plan in Canton has helped the local situation for worthwhile endeavors. The plan also provides for the fair sharing of responsibility in all community projects. The idea spreads everywhere.

"While there are some national organizations that do not wish to participate in the United Fund plan, we have never fought such groups.

Dr. Matthews said that the plan of the Canton directors in setting up a budget was to give according to the need, and that rigid economy is maintained in operating the Fund, which meant that costs were held to less than five per cent, which is 50 per cent lower than the national average.

Canton accepts contributions in a lump sum, in quarterly or monthly payment, the former president said, and collections are almost 100 per cent. The payroll deduction plan is used extensively in the Carolinas, and that has proven satisfactory for Canton, the former president said.

Dr. Matthews hinted that with a little more experience on the part of both the Canton and Waynesville groups, he felt perhaps the two organizations would eventually merge.

Someone asked what happened to the Lions Club dime board Christmas fund.

Don Gilmore, secretary-treasurer of the Hendersonville fund, as well as Dr. Matthews, said they were confronted with the same question when they first organized. Both said that the clubs now put in their budget — $1,500 in each of the two towns — and on December first the club treasurer receives a check for the $1,500 for the Christmas cheer fund expenditures.

Gilmore cited the history of Hendersonville's program, also three years old, and reported the people were well pleased. He said that while some of the national groups would not participate in the United Fund plan, that there had not been a successful national drive staged in Hendersonville since the organization of the United Fund plan.
