for October 26-28. The "Senior Week" event will feature special sessions in career guidance each day under the direction of D. W. Randolph, supervisor of vocational training for the company.

Seniors will receive a hearty welcome and hear H. A. Helder, vice-president and general manager, discuss "Champion's Effect on the Economy of the Area."

A. M. Fairbrother, assistant general manager, will tell the visiting seniors to "Pick A Future - Not Just A Job," and J. M. Barnes, manager of industrial and community relations, will talk to the seniors on "Planning Your Future."

These youthful and energetic guests will receive attractive souvenirs, make a complete tour of the plant, accompanied by competent guides, and will be luncheon guests of Champion in the plant cafeteria each day.

Two special movies, "Your Earning Power" and "Deep Roots" will be shown the visiting seniors each morning after they have been welcomed by J. E. Williamson, assistant manager of industrial and community relations.

J. E. Wilkinson, Champion's assistant plant engineer and general superintendent of the plant engineering department, will lead an important career guidance session on engineering and the mechanical arts.

This phase of the program will include such subjects as mechanical, electrical and civil engineering; and crafts, such as carpentry, machinist, pipefitter, electrician, millwright, welder and other skills. Louis E. Gates, assistant chief engineer, will lead the session on chemistry, chemical and ceramic engineering, and A. M. Fairbrother will lead a session on paper technology.

Mrs. Jeanette Abbott, representing the Haywood County Health Department, will tell the seniors about nursing services, and Ray Orr, a Champion conservation forester, will discuss forestry features.

Agriculture, including dairying and general farming plus woodlot operations, will be explained by Virgil Holloway, Haywood County farm agent, and Miss Sibyl Wilson, supervisor of Champion's stenographic section, will lead a special session on office work, including receptionist, filing duties, secretary assignments, stenographic, clerk and typist activities.

Accounting and related fields will be explained in detail by W. E. Lipham, supervisor of machine tabulating section, and Hugh Mease, Carolina Champion's traffic manager, will discuss transportation, including motor and rail traffic management. A special panel has been arranged to impart general information to visiting seniors. Subjects scheduled to be discussed by the panel members include general employment conditions in the U. S., employment conditions in Western North Carolina, methods of recruiting by various companies, importance of personal interviews, plus some tips on how to hold a job after you get it.

Panel members will be J. Herschel Keener, manager of Champion's vast woods department; J. E. Williamson, D. W. Randolph, and R. B. Patterson, all of the Industrial and Community Relations Department.

The three-day Senior Week program will be opened by 215 seniors representing Waynesville and Bethel High Schools. Enka, Clyde and Fines Creek High School seniors - 195 of them - will visit Champion the second day, and 166 seniors representing Canton, Crabtree-Iron Duff High Schools and Reynolds High School, of Canton, will complete the annual program.

Each day's program will open at 9:45 a.m. after seniors have assembled in the Champion YMCA gymnasium and will end each afternoon about 2:45 following the mill tour.

Family Grunt and Groan

PAW PAW, Mich. (AP) - Because his wife wouldn't let him watch wrestling on television, Larue Labadie charged in court she violated terms of a temporary injunction he obtained against her in advance of a divorce suit trial. Among other things, the injunction forbids Mrs. Labadie from denying him use of household appliances.

The judge told her it "shouldn't be too much of a sacrifice" to let her husband watch TV wrestling once a week.
