Points For Judging HDC Booths Tuesday Announced

Points for judging of Home Demonstration Achievement Day exhibits at the Waynesville Armory during the Tobacco Festival next week have been announced by Miss Mary Cornwell, home demonstration agent. In judging booths, 50 points will be given for general appearance, 50 for educational value. Appearance will be graded from the standpoint of simplicity, organization, and attractiveness. Educational value of the exhibits will take into consideration: interest, inspiration, teaching of an Extension recommendation, and applicability of points stressed by the theme of the booths. Judging will be by the Danish system, with blue ribbons awarded for from 90 to 100 points, red ribbons for from 80 to 90 points, and white ribbons for 80 points or less. The armory will be open all day Monday to enable HDC members to set up their exhibits. However, the armory will not be open to the public until 1 p.m. Tuesday. Judging of the booths will start at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Dave E. Felmet, Jr., In Air Force Reserve

D. F. Felmet, Jr., freshman at the University of the South, at Sewanee, Tenn., and son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Felmet of Waynesville, is enrolled in the Air Force Reserve Officers' Training Corps. Cadet Felmet is one of the 113 freshmen in the first year basic course of Air Force ROTC at Sewanee. This course emphasizes a general indoctrination and introduction to the Air Force, to the doctrine of air power, and to international pressures. After two years of basic ROTC, Cadet Felmet will be eligible for contract in advanced APROTC if found qualified, and will upon completion of requirements for his college degree be commissioned a second lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force and enter flight training.
