DAR Chapter Hears Talk By Miss Johnston

Miss Margaret Johnston, Haywood County librarian for the past twelve years, was the speaker at a regular meeting of the Dorcas Bell Love Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Friday afternoon at Windover, home of Mrs. J. H. Howell, Sr.

Miss Johnston completed her work at the county library last week to accept a similar position in the Rockingham County Library.

She discussed the importance of preserving old records and local history. She spoke of the complete set of genealogical records (more than 150 volumes) which the chapter has placed in the library, stating that the collection is far beyond what would be expected from the size of the library. The records, she said, are used by many out-of-town persons whose local libraries do not have the volumes. She urged the chapter members to complete the rebinding of the books as soon as possible.

Mrs. James L. Elwood, regent, presided.

Mrs. Ben Cockitt presented a model of by-laws for chapters suggested by the National Society, DAR. She also displayed the original copy of the by-laws when the chapter was organized in 1899, and signed "Miss Mary Love Stringfield, Miss Inez Gudgeon, and Miss Nora Welch."

Miss Mary Moore, chairman of Girls' Homemakers, reported that her group of 19 members is studying the Crusades. She showed a robe and banners showing symbols of heraldry, which had been made by the girls.

Mrs. Elwood announced plans for the annual conference of the North Carolina Society, DAR, which will be held in Asheville in March. She discussed the reception, for which the local chapter will be responsible and announced the following gifts obtained through the chapter which will be presented to visiting officials at the conference: a cherry Lazy Susan, by the Unagusta Manufacturing Co.; tapestry by Royle-Pilkington Co.; pewter by Riverwood Crafts, Webster; stationery, by Meade Corp., Sylva; foam rubber pillows, by Dayton Rubber Co.; bedroom shoes, by Welco Shoe Corp.; and flowers, by Clyde H. Ray, florist.

A nominating committee was appointed to report at the March meeting. It is composed of Mrs. W. A. Hyatt, chairman, Mrs. J. M. Long, and Mrs. J. R. Boyd.

Mrs. R. N. Barber, Sr. was elected a delegate to the National Congress in Washington, D. C. Alternates are Mrs. J. H. Howell, Sr., Mrs. W. F. Swift, Mrs. T. L. Gwyn, Mrs. J. W. Killian, and Mrs. J. F. Abel.

Mrs. J. H. Howell, Sr., chairman of Indian work, reported two boxes of books and two boxes of cards sent to Cherokee.

Announcement was made of the acceptance of two new members, Mrs. Wallace Ward and Mrs. James N. Swift. Mrs. Calvin Thielman was a guest.

During the social hour refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. H. Howell, Sr., and Mrs. J. H. Howell, Jr.
