Ramps

The day after Bill Palmer heard from Philadelphia, the Mountaineer office was visited by Duncan McDougald of Bre-vard. All he wanted was every-thing we had in our files about ramps and the ramp convention. (We didn't have a clothes pin for his nose.) Seems that last January he wrote an article for Collier's on the enjoyment of gar-Now his editors have requested a follow-up story on the bulb that out-garlies garlie-the Haywood County ramp. With the file under his arm, Me-Dougald went off to get firsthand facts from Bill and Floyd Woody and the others who inaugurated the series of ramp conventions and watched them sprout up like Jack's beanstalk.

The final episode in the ramp saga came when the county agent received a letter from a botany major at the University of California. He is writing a thesis on odorous plants (and what is more rous than a ramp?) and asked to have by return mail 25-50 pounds of our rodolent ramp. Unfortunately, there is a question of whether the request can be filled. At this time of year even packing in dry ice might not enable the plants to travel across the continent, and who wants to unwrap a shipment of rotten ramps.

Ordinarily, cancellation of this year's ramp convention should have resulted in a drop in public interest, but the opposite seems to have happened. Ramps are coming into their own. The whole nation is waiting with bated breath for news and samples of what we are tempted to call our favorite little stinker. Can it be that ab-scents make the heart grow fonder?
