stantially next year. Before the sale started, Roy Crouse, extension tobacco specialist from N. C. State College, discussed the production of aromatic tobacco with a number of farmers present who have expressed interest in growing a crop next year. He pointed out that aromatic tobacco requires somewhat more labor than burley and a different type of soil than that required by burley. He advised that soil tests and a survey of land be made before farmers attempt growing aromatic tobacco.

Men Of Grace Church To Have Dinner Meet

The Men of Grace Church will hold their first dinner meeting of the season Wednesday evening, October 3, at 6:30 p.m. at the Waynesville Country Club Inn. Allen Brook, head of laymen's activities in the Diocese of Western North Carolina, for the Episcopal Church, will be guest speaker. He is district manager of the Franklin office of Carolina Power and Light Co. The Men of Grace Church organized last year and held monthly dinner meetings at the Grace Episcopal Church Parish House, to which out-of-town speakers were invited. Dwight Beatty is president. About 9 per cent of potatoes in the South show cuts and bruises. Modern digging machinery helps reduce the injury.

continued, as he traced Haywood history over a 148-year period. Jonathan Woody, master of ceremonies, presented Mr. Davis, and the portrait was unveiled by John Haywood Davis, great-great-grandson of the man for whom Haywood county was named. Senator William Medford accepted the portrait in behalf of the county, saying, we do so with "renewed faith, and increased devotion to the principles which our founding fathers gave us." Mr. Davis began his presentation address by citing that the history of "Haywood county reads like a story book, but it did not just happen — it took planning and sacrifices.

"The first railroad came to Haywood in 1882, the first newspaper in 1888 (The Mountaineer), the first bank in 1887, and the first power plant in 1889.

"Haywood citizens were always in the lead in the wars of our nation. During World War II, Haywood had more volunteers per capita than any other county in the nation. And I feel it significant that the last shot of the War Between the States took place in Haywood—near Waynesville.

"One of the greatest characteristics of Haywood people has been the spirit of cooperation, and the feeling of being one great family.

"The interest in religion is a marked asset of the citizens of this great county; the growth of your churches, and the expansion program now under way at Lake Junaluska is significant.

"Haywood is not lacking in leadership. There is an abundance of excellent leaders in the county. If we could provide the same type leadership for state as Haywood has for the county, we could climb from some of the places where we are now standing in a number of things."

Mr. Davis pointed out that Haywood county was an intriguing subject to a large area, and that many sections have been watching the accomplishments of the county.

"Haywood began to make rapid strides in 1906 when Champion Paper and Fibre Company came to the county," he said as he paid special tribute to Reuben B. Robertson, Sr. for industrial leadership, and who was in the audience. Mr. Davis said the "foremost spirit of Champion is the sincere interest in people."

"Haywood County has the highest industrial wage in the state, and is in a position to interest the highest type of new industry to locate here.

"Your balanced economy in agriculture is especially interesting, and you have developed the Community Development Program to a high degree of perfection," he concluded.

Senator Medford in accepting the portrait, said he expected greater progress would be made in the next 10 years in Haywood than have been made since the county was founded in 1808 to the present time. He pointed to the program of the National Park Service's "Mission 66" for completion of development of the Smokies and the Blue Ridge Parkway; the recently inaugurated agricultural program to increase farm income to $10,000,000 annually, and a stimulated program to attract other industries.

for the pulp and paper industry in North Carolina. The state has "great need for strong educational and research programs in the management of our forests and the utilization of these products," Hodges asserted. He expressed the fear that Tar Heel farmers have treated their forest lands "like a mine rather than as a crop." Woodlands, he added, "constitute one of our greatest undeveloped and neglected sources of income for our farm population."

leader of this area, died in 1944. She was born in Ninety Six, S. C., in 1863, and moved to Waynesville in 1890 as a bride. Two years later Mr. and Mrs. Shelton entered the Indian service at Cherokee and in 1894 they moved west to continue their work.

They retired from the Indian Service in 1916 while serving on the Navajo Reservation at Shiprock, N. Mexico, and returned to Waynesville where Mr. Shelton entered business.

Mrs. Shelton was a member of the First Methodist Church and was active in the affairs of the church. Her last business transaction was signing a check for her annual contribution to the church.

A number of people from out of the county, especially from Jackson county, and the Greenwood section of South Carolina, attended the funeral.

Surviving are one brother, Clinton B. Pitts of Greenwood, S. C.; Henry Tuttle, foster son; and a number of nieces and nephews of Asheville, Waynesville, and South Carolina.

Garrett Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

the third speaker, and will use as his topic: "Trumpet Notes and Broken Pitchers."

A discussion period is set to follow, with plans being made for the election of a permanent chairman and appointment of a steering committee, to make a long range study of the needs as decided upon by the session Tuesday evening.

Rev. Mr. Robinett said letters had gone to the pastors of the 12-county area, and a large number of interested laymen are expected to accompany pastors to the meeting.

There are 600 Baptist churches in the 12-county area, with membership of 116,535, the latest records show. There are 14 Associations within the district, and comprise Buncombe, Carolina, French Broad, New Found, Yancey, Mitchell, Haywood, Transylvania, Cherokee, Tuckasee, Macon, Tennessee, Western North Carolina and West Liberty.

Cherokee Indian Fair Opens Tues.

The 39th annual Cherokee Indian Fair will open on the Reservation here October 2. It will continue daily through Saturday, October 6.

The president of the Fair is Jarrett B. Blythe. Other officers are Arseno Thompson, vice president; Jack Jackson, general manager; and Charlotte Sneed, secretary. Mr. Blythe is also chief of the Tribe, and Mr. Thompson, who is pastor of an Indian church, has had for seven years one of the top Indian roles in "Unto These Hills".

The Fair is unique in the United States because it is solely an Indian production and the exhibits and prize events are limited to Indian competition. Since it was started in 1914 the event has outgrown the limits of a small community exhibition, and now is ranked in interest and importance as equal to the best county and regional fairs in this part of the South.

Of chief interest will be the daily "stick ball" games, the arts and crafts exhibits of Indian sculptors, basket weavers, pot-

REV. E. STANLEY HAMMOND of Gooltsville, Tenn., has assumed the pastorate of the Waynesville Church of the Nazarene, succeeding Rev. Don Conrad, who resigned here to accept a pastorate in Greensboro. Rev. Hammond, a seasoned evangelist and pastor, has served in churches in both the United States and Canada, and will reside with Mrs. Hammond at 118 Depot St.

Rev. James Perry To Be Guest Minister At Asheville School Oct. 7

The Rev. James Y. Perry, Jr., rector of Grace Episcopal Church, has been invited to be guest minister at the Asheville School for Boys. David Fall, headmaster of the Asheville School, requested Mr. Perry conduct the 5 o'clock Vesper Service next Sunday, October 7.

Mr. Perry will also conduct the morning devotions at 8 a.m. over Waynesville's Radio Station WHCC each morning this week through Saturday. This program is sponsored by the Haywood County Ministerial Association, of which he is president.

ters and wood carvers; displays of great varieties of colored Indian beans and strawberry popcorn and the needle work and canning of Indian housewives.

Also to be seen nowhere else is an Indian Baby show, bow and arrow and blow gun contests, and Indian dancing.

October 5 is school children's day. On this day the Cherokee Indian High School will meet Andrews high school in a football game on the Fair Grounds.

Haywood Welfare Staff To Attend Regional Meeting

Members of the Haywood County Welfare Department will attend the three-day program of the annual Regional Conference of the American Public Welfare Association which convenes October 3 in Asheville. The theme of the conference will be "Expanding Protective, Preventive, and Rehabilitative Services Through Public Welfare."

Governor Hodges will be the speaker at the opening general session Wednesday morning, October 3. Others appearing on the program will include leaders in public welfare from North Carolina and elsewhere across the nation.

Those expecting to attend from the local office are Mrs. Sam L. Queen, superintendent, Miss Victoria Bell, Mrs. Joe Cole, Mrs. C. H. Leatherwood, Mrs. F. G. Rippe, Miss Rena Cathey, and Miss Pauline Williams.

Roger Pearson Is New Pastor At Hazelwood

The Rev. Frank Smathers, superintendent of the Waynesville District of the Methodist Church, has announced the appointment of the Rev. Roger Pearson as pastor of the Hazelwood Methodist Charge, which includes the Hazelwood and Francis Cove churches.

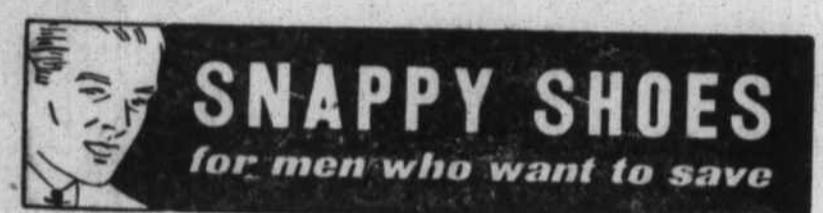

The Rev. L. E. Wiggins, a retired minister, who has been serving the Hazelwood charge, resigned at the recent conference of the church in Winston-Salem.

Mr. Pearson and his wife will make their home at the parsonage in Hazelwood.

Mr. Pearson's first services will be held next Sunday morning at Francis Cove at 10 o'clock and at Hazelwood at 11 o'clock. Both churches will observe World Communion Day.

Consumers would buy more dewberries if they were packed in pint rather than quart boxes, a State College study shows.
