Some "Stoar"

TURNERSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—A foxy retailer has displayed a sign at his store here for many years that challenges the spelling of the King's English. It reads: "Hobin's Stoar."

Inside sits an affable Irishman, John Hobin, 77, who has long since become used to people stopping by to tell him how to spell "stoar."

"They've come from as far away as New York. School children stop by to tell him it's misspelled. But John's nobody's fool. The fading sign "Hobin's Stoar," has made his out-of-the-way establishment known throughout the state. People who otherwise would never have heard of Turnersville or Hobin have come by to see the sign.

CHARLESBURG, Wis. (AP)—Mrs. William Burg has collected 225 salt and pepper shakers of every conceivable shape and kind in the last 10 years, but she said the most cherished ones are shaped like tiny beer steins.
