No, Bob Didn't Vote For Himself

Nope, it was a mistake. Bob Wells didn't vote for himself last week in the Kenansville election. One vote was cast for Bob for Mayor and the TIMES was informed that Bob did it, and knowing that Bob is a fellow who likes a joke we wrote it up, but he informs us that he was out of town all day and did not vote, so we thought we would write that up too. The writer believes that if the time comes when Kenansville's Mayor, Jimmy Jerritt, decides to retire from politics that Bob Wells would be a mighty good man to succeed him. But Capt. Jimmy Can't be beat, from the standpoint of service, we mean, so let's keep him in harness as long as possible.

WET AND DRY ISSUES SEEN IN GOVERNORS RACE

Grady Well Known IN DUPLIN COUNTY; A NATIVE SON OF THIS COUNTY

Paul D. Grady, State Senator from Johnston, yesterday announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor.

Senator Grady, president pro tempore of the 1935 Senate, was the first to make his formal entry in a race which may attract two, possibly three, other entries. He, however, has done by far the most campaign work to date and is said to have secured the support, tentatively at least, of a number of fraternal and other organizations.

One of Senator Grady's opponents probably will be Senator Carl Bailey of Washington, Senator W. P. Horton of Chatham or Senator W. G. Clark of Edgecombe. It is very probable that neither Senator Bailey nor Senator Horton will run if Senator Clark does and he is not anxious to make a campaign. Moreover, the same legislative faction is interested in the proposed candidacies of Senators Bailey and Horton, so only one of the three is likely to run.

The long expected announcement of Clyde Hoey, prominent Shelby attorney, for governor was also made Tuesday. Mr. Hoey expects to run, it is believed, on a dry platform as his record behind him proves him to be an ardent dry. The first to announce for governor was Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham of Hillsboro. Mr. Graham has served several terms on the legislature, having been Speaker of the House and president of the Senate. Mr. Graham has developed quite a bit of strength, it is said. Friends of Mr. Graham think he will make a very strong race. It is thought that he will run on a wet platform.
