WALLACE WELCOMES YOU

Wallace, Sept. 30. Again Wallace merchants and tobacconists are using their county newspaper to reach their patrons with the message that their own county tobacco market is selling tobacco higher, and that their own county trading center is prepared to take care of their every need, and invites them to come and see for themselves.

It is impossible to stress too much the fact that Wallace is the only tobacco market in Duplin County, and that Wallace merchants are as well prepared to take care of their needs as many much larger towns, because it is to the advantage to the people of this county to realize that such is the truth.

When tobacco is sold in Wallace the results are favorable in many ways. The farmer has shorter hauls, costing much less for transportation. He can sell the same day he carries his tobacco to the market, making it unnecessary to spend the more than one day from home. He knows who he is trading with, and, so justly expects to receive a square deal. And above all, he receives more money for his tobacco, and pays less to the warehousemen who are taxpayers of the same county.

The same things apply of trading in Wallace. He has all the advantages of a larger town with a few of the disadvantages. In Wallace the farmer can find the things he wants at the price he wants to pay. Merchants in every line of business are his friends, and treat him as such, offering him a variety of goods at the lowest possible price. Also they are fellow taxpayers of Duplin County, wishing to pay the same taxes as he does, so that the small profit from the goods they sell goes to lighten his own tax burden.

Wallace believes in its importance to the people of the county and is proud of it. It intends to carry that responsibility honorably. And that is why the people of Wallace say, "You are welcome to buy or sell."

Smith Township

The grounds of Smith Chapel were a merry scene Saturday evening when the Presbyterian League entertained the League from Pleasant View with a winter treat. Games were enjoyed first, then the large crowd gathered around the cheerful campfire and roasted wieners and made merry until time to say goodbye.

Mrs. Leila Chiles acted as chaperone.

A Day of Prayer was observed.
