How many of us when we are reading, note various descriptive expressions? A little more attention paid to description would improve our conversation considerably.

The following was observed by the writer while reading a new book, Mervey Allen, author of Anthony Adverse: "Two mighty waves of the Appalachians shouldered their way into the blue distance like tremendous caravans marching against eternity."

Why is it that an organization as large as the State Highway System will send a crew of men to work using dangerous machinery without a single person in the crew knowing first aid? Monday a Negro working on the highway near Kenansville was caught under a heavy road machine and his right leg crashed nearly off. Reports said that he lost over half a gallon of blood before reaching a doctor and no one had attempted to cord his leg.

Have you ever stood before a judge—and he is only a human being just like you and I—and heard him pronounce the death sentence? It is a terrible thing. No matter how hard, mean or brutal the victim may be, it is about the most touching experience the writer has ever had: Three Negroes, guilty of a heinous crime are sitting before a Judge and he tells them the day and between what hours their life will be taken from them.

Sitting in a court room filled with hundreds of people, all free to go and come as they may. It is only a few steps to the open door and a full life, if they had only thought before acting they would be as free as every one else. But society must have laws and they must be enforced. The three Negroes broke the law and they must pay the penalty. They are taken from the court room, put into an automobile and rushed away to Raleigh where they must wait for death. Yes, they know the day, and just about the hour when they will be marched to the death chamber, seated in a chair and poisonous gas made to come over their bodies until they are dead. Every minute passing they are conscious of that day when they must die. They could be free, in the fields at work. But they have violated the law, they have committed a crime and they must pay with their lives. Society is avenged.

THE TONGUE

James, the pastor of the Church as Jerusalem is warning about the dangers of the tongue. It is dangerous. It is a fire. It sets on fire of Hell. If so dangerous then it should be controlled. James goes on to give us a lecture on the use of the tongue which we will follow here. 1. Christian teachers need control of tongue. James is here speaking of those who teach. They must be careful as to what they teach and we don't need too many teachers anyway. People were rising up all over the church claiming that they have a right to teach but James seems to think differently. Be careful who teach, and let that one be careful what he teaches. Those who teach need to be very careful that they teach the Truth, and not some fancy that they have found.

2. The tongue should be controlled because it is such a power. It is like the bit of the bridle and the rudder of the ship, or the spark in the leaves.

It starts something. If in the wrong way, then of fire of Hell, and if the right way then to praise of God. A word can ruin some one's character. A word can send a soul to hell, a word can break homes, communities and nations. Also a word can bring a man to Christ, can encourage one to go on, can bring peace in the home or nation. It is so powerful, be careful with it.

3. James says that the tongue is hard to control. Man has been able to tame all animal life, he can control the elements, lightning, floods, fire, etc., but no man has been able to control the tongue. Most people talk too much and set out fires of destruction. James says the tongue portrays what is in the heart, and when there is wickedness and rebellion there it comes out in a man's speech.

4. James says that we are often inconsistent in the use of the tongue. One minute we are praising God and another we are cursing men who are made in the image of God. James says when we do that it clearly shows that our religion is just for outward show and not real. No man who has been redeemed by Jesus is going to have the hostile attitude toward man. When we are two faced, one face is always a put on one, a no Christian can be two-faced, so any man that appears that way must be out of God.

5. James says that the tongue can be controlled, but only by the power of God. Our tongue is being controlled by Satan or by God. The fruits that it bears tell whether it is in power in your life. It can tell by its fruits. What are the fruits coming from in your life? Let no corrupt speech proceed out of your mouth. You can control your tongue, if you are willing to let God control your life. Watch your tongue. Be careful what you say, when you speak, and when you speak. Jesus can help you do that if you will let Him.

To BELIEVE or Not To BELIEVE

FOOLKS, if you have been faithfully keeping up with this so-called column you probably had a little trouble finding it week before last. You hunted about all over the paper and finally found it in the center of the back page. Then last week you continued to look and never did find it. In order to relieve the punishment of your abused minds, we might as well explain here and now. It was a question of not being able to do any better. Business has been increasing so fast that for two weeks we had no other place to put our regular stuff. But you will no longer have any trouble finding your well-loved journalistic musings. From now on your columnist shall retain title to a spot on the editorial page, where he should have been placed to begin with.

AND now to drag up the past. Have you heard about the embarrassment your columnist got into with his professed interest in photography. He was busily engaged last week in getting exclusive photos of the negroes condemned to die for raping a white girl, and had gone so far as to enter the courtroom to snap a few shots before the trial began. While he was absorbed in his work, things began to happen unbeknownst to his unworthy self, and the first thing he knew Judge Henry Grady was saying from the bench, "Young man with the camera, come up here and tear up that roll of film in the presence of the court." Biggest crowd in the courtroom ever seen there, too.

HE told you about that in his column last week, which failed to appear. He also told you then about the Times receiving a newspaper from Kenansville, Florida, and elaborated on the interest thereby created but somebody else apparently saw it, and one of the contemporaries with kleptomaniacal tendencies has the story in his or her column this week. Ah, such is life. (Sue, em, Hughie, for plagiarism.)

AT any rate your correspondent learned one thing from that paper which came from Kenansville. He is no longer ignorant as to the meaning of the term "jerk joint," although he admits that he is a little hazy as to its derivation. He first saw the term in a blessing headline which ran, "Attorney Jolts Jerk Joint." Upon strict examination he found that the term referred to certain dance halls and beer parlors with very loose ideas as to the proper age and duties of hostesses employed there.

HOW many of you ever heard of the "Prince"? Oh, you haven't? Then you have probably heard of

THE SLAVE INSURRECTION CONSPIRACY:

An interesting chapter in our history is the slave troubles of 1831. During the month of August one Nat Turner, a slave, of Southampton County, Virginia, led an insurrection of the slaves in that County. They murdered fifty-old white persons, including many helpless women and children. Nat and several of his gang were captured and promptly executed. It is believed that the insurrection in this section. A month of September and arrested. It is recorded that a year in substantially the following:

County, September 13, 1831. Southampton County have been alarmed. We have ten or fifteen in of them will be bound over to testimony that will implicate. We wish you to issue an order in County to appoint a guard. The people of Duplin County being held and have found been put to death. There was one in Duplin before." Signed R. C. Holmes, H. C. Holm-were indicted and imprisoned. The following names have been of slaves belonging to Colonel belonging to Rev. Samuel Stan- Peter Carlton, and ERWIN, Monk. They were tried John B. Donnell, Judge pre- Solicitor for the State, and more, Williams Cooper, Joseph son, Samuel Houston, Daniel Libens Middleton, William Jeremiah Sandlin. The jury County afforded. One hun- named by the Sheriff, Colonel we, a slave belonging to Dr. have belonging to Mrs. Moore, County jail as necessary witness- turned to Sampson jail.

The following verdict: "We find the defendants Fernald, Jerry and Pompey guilty of the felony and conspiracy as charged in the bill of indictment, and further find the defendants John, Sam and Erwin, not guilty." The day was September 30, 1831. On the next day the Judgment of the Court, as recorded by Honorable Jeremiah Fernald, Clerk, was as follows: "The defendants being brought to the Bar, the Solicitor for the State moved for the Judgment of the Court, whereupon the Court asked the defendant prisoners why judgment of death should not be passed upon them and no reason being offered the Court proceeded to the following judgment, viz: That the said Fernald, Jerry and Pompey be taken to the jail of the County and from thence to the place of public execution and be there hung by the neck until they be dead, and that this judgment be carried into execution by the Sheriff of Duplin County on Saturday the eighth of October between the hours of ten o'clock in the morning and four o'clock in the evening." Elijah, a slave belonging to Rev. Robert Tate of New Hanover (now Fender) County, was brought into Duplin Superior Court at March term, 1833, charged with conspiracy. He was in the custody of Sheriff Gabriel Holmes, of New Hanover, tried before Judge James Martin, and dismissed.

Apparently the conspiracy troubles were then ended as nothing more of it has been found in the public records.

Birth Rate Holds Lead Over 1936

Raleigh, Oct. 14.—North Carolina's birth rate continued to hold a lead over the previous year the first eight months of 1937, while the death rate showed a decline under the 1936 figures, it is revealed in reports compiled by the Bureau of Vital Statistics, State Board of Health. There was a rise in infant mortality deaths, however, while maternal deaths showed a decline. During the first eight months of this present year there were 2,819 deaths among infants under the year old, as compared with 3,380 the corresponding period in 1936. It also appears that there were 616 deaths from diarrhea and colic among children under two, as compared with 447 from January through August last year. Here, the percentage of increase was considerable.

Through August, in 1937, there were 83,978 little North Carolinians born, as compared with 81,981 the same period last year, a gain of 1,997, while deaths recorded this year numbered 22,954, which, compared with 24,307, the first eight months of 1936, reflected a decline of 1,353. Maternal deaths during the period so far reported this year numbered 301, while last year's total in North Carolina through August was 335.

The largest number of births in a single month this year, so far, was 7,197 in June, this figure having also exceeded all months in the corresponding period of 1936. Fewest births occurred in January, when the total was only 6,109, while April, last year, with 4,079, held the low record for that period. The largest number of deaths this year in a single month was 4,377 in March, while the lowest, 3,874, occurred in August.

During last year, through August, 646 were totaled 1,523, as compared with 1,173 the corresponding period of 1936. Approximately a half of 1937, as compared with 1936, the same period last year, there is a total of 1,200, as compared with 1,000, the same period last year.

imed 183 victims, as compared with 158 last year, while Polio-myelitis claimed a dozen last year, through August, the total was just ten.

Plans have just been completed to work the Johnston County term- ing unit twelve months a year instead of eight.

Six upright silos have been constructed by Brunswick County farmers within the past few weeks.

Four-H Club boys of Columbus County have made outstanding records this year with their corn projects. Many adult farmers are planning to buy their seed corn next year from these boys.
