A HEROINE OF 1812

By Leslie Brown, Jr.
Age 14, Editor and Publisher of the "Junior Times" at Warsaw, N. C.

The following article was published in the Mar. 13, 1943 issue of "The State" published weekly by Carl Goerch:

For many years North Carolina women have done their part in the winning of our wars. This incident is a small part in hastening the close of the War of 1812, but many small things like it put together was a great factor in determining the victory for the Americans.

Lucy Myrrelle Kennedy, wife of David Kennedy, of Duplin County, was visiting her parents in Onslow County. She was assigned to carry valuable papers from American forces to other forces in Sampson County. For a young woman of 21 this was a daring and thrilling experience. But after all, no one would suspect a woman!

The first fifteen miles seemed unadventurous. She had not been questioned, and only scenes of unsettled woodland came to her eyes.

She finally came to Limestone (now Hallsville) on the Northeast River. Probably suspicious, the British in that village held her as a spy. Her heart beat fast as she was questioned and searched. Everything she said must give satisfaction for a slip of the tongue would surely mean death. She was searched from head to foot, but nothing could be found. Still suspicious, they kept her another day and for still another, but to no avail. She was then set free, as no evidence of a spy could be found.

The journey continued through Duplin. Of course the trip seemed long, for she was constantly afraid she would again be held and questioned.

She finally reached Sampson County safely, and with a happy heart she delivered the valuable, entrusted papers to the Sampson officers.

Miss Best Bride of Purcell Jones in Twilight Ceremony

Miss Helen Marsh Best became the bride of Purcell Jones in a simple though impressive ceremony which was solemnized on Friday evening, March 19, at 6:00 o'clock, in the Warsaw Baptist Church with the bride's pastor the Rev. G. Van Stephens officiating.

Bridal green and white was used in the church decorations. The altar was banked with long leaf pine and was a background for the white floor standards entwined with ivy which held burning white tapers. Centering the altar was a beautiful arrangement of white gladioli and fern.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. J. E. Williams, pianist, gave a program of pre nuptial music; her selections included "Song of Sunshin," Kholmann; "Conzone Amore," Nevins; "Oh, Promise Me," De Koven; and "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life," by Herbert. Miss Nell J. Bowden, soprano, sang, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," Stults and "Because," d' Harelott. While the vows were being spoken, Mrs. Williams softly played "Song to the Evening Star," by Wagner. For the processional, "Lohengrin Bridal Chorus" by Wagner was used and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" for the recessional.

Ushers were Steve Jones of Clinton, brother of the groom; James Herman and Edward Hines, and Charlie Sheffield.

The bride and groom entered the church together unattended. She was lovely in a handsome white flannel suit, with which she used lavender accessories and wore on her shoulder a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Best, the bride's mother, was dressed in light blue with navy accessories and Mrs. Ashford mother of the bridegroom, wore navy with matching accessories. Both wore a shoulder corsage of pink sweetest rose buds.

The bride the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Simon Best, of Warsaw was graduated from the Warsaw High School and received her degree in public school music from Meredith College Raleigh, in January 1943. At present she is on the faculty of the St. Pauls School.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Tom Ashford and the late Mr. Sam Jones of Clinton, formerly of Warsaw. He received his education at the Warsaw and Clinton High School. March 23rd he entered the Navy.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Best parents of the bride, entertained at a buffet supper at their home on Hwy. St. for out of town guests and close friends of the bridal couple.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mesdames Leslie Brown and Frank Thomas. In the receiving hall and reception rooms white flowers and white candles were used and in the gift room were bouquets of early spring flowers in pastel hues.

In the dining room the table was overlaid with an exquisite lace cloth and in the center was a three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom; single crystal holders held burning white tapers.

The buffet was centered with an artistic arrangement of fruit and ivy flanked on either sides by seven branched candelabra. Assisting in serving were: Misses Rebecca Best, sister of the bride, Annie Ruth Calson, Margery Thomas and Mesdames Macon Hollingsworth, L. H. Brown and F. J. Thomas.

Attending from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Best, Dr. Delcon Best, Mrs. Lillie Best, and Miss Frances Boney, of Goldsboro; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ashford, Steve Jones, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Harry Stewart; and Miss Myrtle Peterson of Clinton; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Creech, Miss Mary Bullard, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cooke, of Raleigh. ## "Uncle" Charlie

Corbett's Store

Gives "State" Story

Duplin county people who know of Uncle Charlie Corbett's store at Ivanhoe in Sampson county have been chuckling over a story which appeared in a recent issue of State Magazine.

Uncle Charlie's store is crowded and when anyone arrives asking for an item Uncle Charlie sends them in to look for it. Armistia Carr of Wallace, who sells cigarettes, stopped at Uncle Charlie's store one day not long ago, and asked Uncle Charlie if he needed cigarettes. Uncle Charlie told him to go see if the cigarettes were out.

Mr. Carr went to look, and in seeking the cigarettes he stepped on a barrel, which contained molasses. The head of the barrel broke in with Mr. Carr, and he took an unasked for bath in the syrup barrel. Uncle Charlie helped get him out, and then suggested that he wash his clothes at the store pump. Mr. Carr removed his outer clothing down to his underwear. After washing industriously for sometime two ladies appeared, and sent Mr. Carr scuttling for cover.

He made little progress on the job of washing, finally giving it up. Oblongingly Uncle Charlie loaned him a pair of overalls, much too large for him, and Mr. Carr drove off toward his home in Wallace. Leaving he suggested that Uncle Charlie keep the cigarettes on a lower counter that would be easier to get to.

"Oh, that's all right," said Uncle Charlie. "You didn't hurt the molasses any." Mr. Carr had no further comment to make.

Half the voters favor U. S. lotteries, Gallup poll finds.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

Big families? I think of Dad and Ma Hoskins and their thirteen children! Thirteen's a lot of youngsters to control. But Dad found a way to keep 'em out of mischief by "self-regulation."

"You kids can check up on yourselves," he says. "When somebody gets out of order, you call a meeting and dish out the punishment."

You know, the idea worked. And I mention it because it reminds me of what the beer industry is doing.

They've united with the beer distributors in a self-regulation program—to help the authorities "clean up or close up" offending taverns that bring discredit to a decent industry.

From where I sit, that's a fine thing for the brewers to do—to see that beer is sold in clean, decent, friendly places.
