CANINE COMMANDOS

The Canadian Army's newest recruits are four dogs of mixed breed who are learning to use their fangs for guard duty. The dogs will grab an intruder and pin him down until help arrives. Inset shows Lou Abfalter, a well-known dog trainer, who is teaching the canines commando tactics.

FOUR of the newest recruits in Canada's Army are youngsters of 15 to 18 months, averaging about 65 pounds in weight and from two feet to 18 inches in height, answering to the names of Private Buster, Ping, Rex and Postum. Altogether they form a sort of canine United Nations. Rex is an even mixture of Husky and collie; Buster is half Labrador retriever and half air-dale; Ping is 50 per cent collie and 50 per cent chow. Postum, who looks like an albatross, claims that his place in Dogdom's nationality is a military secret.

Training for guard duty with the Army, the four dogs are undergoing a four-week course in canine commando tactics. They are learning to be suspicious of everyone except their keepers, four members of the R.O.C.C. Pte. E. M. Brennan of Ottawa has teamed up with Rex; Pte. A. Dennis of New Brunswick with Buster; Pte. T. W. Jones of Winnipeg with Ping; and Pte. J. G. McIntyre of New Brunswick with Postum.

The dogs are learning to attack an intruder by seizing his arm and pulling him down. An instructor wears a heavy two-inch-thick pad from his shoulder to his finger tips for the job. When he approaches, the dogs are supposed to leap upon him and get a good hold on the padding. They all respond in the approved manner except Buster, who fakes a bite at the padding and then tries to sink his teeth into the instructor's ankles. According to the trainer it's a neat trick that Buster himself developed—but it's a little tough on the instructor.

Meals for the dogs consist of 3 pounds of cooked meat for every 25 pounds they weigh. They are given one serving a day. They are fed, groomed and taken on their patrols by only one man. The presence of a second person anywhere within their sight will meet with a hot reception.

The dogs are trained to respond to verbal commands and gestures. They are never struck nor whipped even though in the early days of their training they disobey orders.

Nature has given them thick heavy coats, ideal equipment for duty during cold winters.

AMERICAN HEROES

BY LEFF

Captain Anthony Hollub, manned the top turret guns of his grounded plane to return the fire of the Jap air attack on Clark Field in the Philippines. Exposed to strafing planes, the New Mexico captain ran across the field for more ammunition when it was exhausted. He was ready to sacrifice his life to keep his guns blazing. How much can you invest in Payroll Savings to help heroic fighters like Hollub to keep firing?

The Georgia and Florida flue-cured tobacco markets held the spotlight last week in the southern region, opening with average prices by grades well above opening day last year, the War Food Administration announced. Largest increases occurred in lower quality grades. Prices continued fairly steady with the general average for the entire belt at 41 50 a hundred-pound for the later part of the week. This is a decrease of about one dollar from the opening day.

The week's movement in fruits and vegetables for the southern area was seasonally light in volume. In local markets, however, there was a fair supply of field peas, butterbeans, okra, squash, snap and pole beans and tomatoes. Peaches from both Georgia and the Carolinas continue in light shipments, with prices remaining high as the season draws to an end. Decreasing potato shipments from Virginia and North Carolina brought relatively strong prices at the close of the week. Prices on sweet potatoes also continue strong with light shipments from Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Louisiana. Cantaloupes and watermelons are moving in moderate to light volume with cantaloupe season about closed.

In the southeastern cattle markets, prices held generally steady the entire week despite increased receipts. Stocker and feeder trade was fairly active. Canner and cutter grades continue to make up the bulk of offerings although a larger sprinkling of better grades have been reported in some sales this past week. Hogs were fairly active, with trade slackening off towards the end of the week. Prices were firm throughout the area. Prevailing top prices were: for the southeast—area 14.25; Nashville 14.10; Montgomery 14.25; Louisville 14.35; Richmond 13.90; North Carolina and Virginia cash buying stations 13.75 and 13.90.

Egg prices were firm with supply generally light. Large white grade A eggs brought producers in Atlanta about 42 cents, Richmond 43 cents, and Raleigh 48 cents. Live poultry receipts continued light in Richmond and Raleigh, but increased in Atlanta, with both fryers and hens plentiful. Hens in Atlanta are bringing 23-25 cents, in Richmond 24-25 cents, and in Raleigh 25 cents a pound.

There is still no corn available at southern markets, and most corn meal mills are shut down. Other feed grains made moderate advances during the week. By-product feedstuffs continued very scarce and very little was offered to the South except ground grains. Cotton prices were easier. October New York closed at 19.84 cts. down 16 points from last week.
