Can You Picture NORTH CAROLINA without its War Activities?

War is a long way from North Carolina—but in so many ways it's mighty close to us. Our men are fighting all over the world — our factories and farms are producing an endless stream of supplies our troops depend upon. But even that isn't all — it wouldn't be enough!

We have so much more to do right here in North Carolina—jobs that are up to all of us, jobs that must be well done. In the 4th War Bond Drive, for instance, North Carolinians bought $172,000,000 worth — 37% above our quota—but we're keeping right on buying more and more! We've gladly given our money to the Red Cross — and hundreds of thousands of hours of our time to making surgical dressings and kits for our men overseas.

We've supported and worked for the U.S.O. and various war relief groups. We've built and maintained an efficient Civilian Defense organization. We've collected scrap and rubber, tin and fat. Whatever has been asked, North Carolina has done — and then some!

The men and women of the Greyhound Lines, like their fellow-citizens of North Carolina, have shared in all of these activities. They've also shared in the vital job of moving wartime necessities — in uniform or in work clothes. On special occasions they've transported U.S.O. Camp Shows and brought partners to camp dances. Greyhound buses — by making near neighbors and good neighbors of all the communities they serve in this State — by taking away war plants, farm centers, and military camps and bases — are helping to keep North Carolina's war effort rolling toward Victory!
