

One Moment of Greatness . . .

As the invasion of Suigan, a certain Marine platoon was given the job of clearing out a Jap pocket which was impeding the advance up the western coast. Sgt. quiet Norman Arsenault, an 18-year-old private from Lawrence, Mass., was a member of this platoon. (1) The Japs were imbedded in a deep crevice in the face of a seven-foot cliff. Lying in a prone position, they opened up on the platoon with a murderous machine-gun and rifle fire. Arsenault and his companions were pinned down behind the low parapet that separated the cliff from the sea. Reaching their machine-gun position, Arsenault quickly left the cliff and, with a few comrades, started to creep back to the water. (2) The net that will forever keep him in the memory of his comrades

(3) Twenty feet out in the water, Arsenault stood erect and began pouring bullets into the crevice. Fifty enemy runs returned his fire and hundreds of enemy bullets went singing toward him, ripping in the surf about him. (4) While Arsenault carried out this daring one-man maneuver, his buddies scrambled from behind the bunker. One by one, they began to creep to safety atop the cliff, while the Japs concentrated their fire on Arsenault. (5) Out of ammunition, Arsenault dashed through the water to the beach with a murderous machine-gun and rifle fire. Arsenault and his companions were pinned down behind the low parapet that separated the cliff from the sea. Reaching their machine-gun position, Arsenault quickly left the cliff and, with a few comrades, started to creep back to the water. U. S. Fleet Visits Manila

MANILA—Admiral William F. Halsey Jr.'s Third Fleet paid a surprise visit to the Japanese at Manila and left those blazing docks in the harbor as a calling card. Warplanes from units of Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's fast carrier task force roamed at will over the former capital of the Philippines, selecting military targets of a variety of nature. Municipal buildings, built by the Filipinos in the days before the Japanese invaded their homeland, stand out in the right background. TAKE YOUR FERTILIZER NOW

War Food Administration WARNS... NOW OR NEVER FOR 1945

There's a crisis in the making! If stocks pile up in fertilizer plants and agents' warehouses, the stream of supply will choke up. They must move fast or the lack of man-power will cause a paralyzing shortage.

Take the Chilean Nitrate situation for example. To supply the quantity needed for 1945 crops, many cargoes must be unloaded each month at each port, then moved out by train and truck for immediate allocation. It must move out of agents' hands as fast as it moves in. If not, the choke-up starts and works back to the ports, even back to the ships.

Already there's a threatened shortage of nitrogen, due to sharply increased war needs. Unless you help smash the bottle-neck by taking your nitrate as soon as it is offered, the shortage will become acute. Thousands of tons will pile up at U.S. ports or on the docks in Chile. The only place Chilean Nitrate does you any good is on your crops. Get yours now... while you can.

Storage Tips Fill all materials on dry boards in barn or shed. Fill materials separately. Keep piles close together. Destroy the bags when you use the contents.

1918 - - - 1944 ARMISTICE DAY

We give honor to those men who won World War I. We also want to honor our hundreds of young men, who are fighting a greater war, for higher stakes, the freedom of the world.

We hope that these men will soon be able to bring about a more glorious Armistice than that other one 26 years ago.

While our men are fighting it is important that each of us do everything we can to help win this war.
