REMEMBER TORTURED MEN

Warning the Japanese that they will be held responsible for mistreatment of prisoners of war, Gen. Douglas MacArthur refers to "unimpeachable evidence" of "degradation and even brutality" to which American prisoners were subjected by the

The special announcement recounts that a large number of Americans were removed from the Davao penal colony. The prisoners were surrounded by ropes, tied to outside men, and guarded by enemy soldiers. They were packed into a ship so tightly that they could hardly sit down.

On the way to Japan, the Japanese vessel was sunk by an American submarine. A large number of Americans went down with the ship or "were brutally killed in cold blood by the Japanese officers and men." Some survivors were massacred as they tried to escape the sinking ship, others were hunted in the holds and shot to death, and still others were shot as they tried to swim to shore.

The report concludes that 83 officers and men made the shore and were cared for by Philippine guerrillas until taken south by submarines and planes. Subsequently, three Americans were found dead of stab wounds on the beach, two with their hands tied behind their backs.

We call attention to this report in order that every American will understand the brutality of the Japanese. It is important to remember such incidents, especially when sentimental Americans begin to talk about lenient treatment for the enemy. In the day of triumph there will be no need for revenge but every demand for justice to dead and tortured men.

Shoes Will Be Brighter Next Spring

As representatives from Allied and pentral nations met in Chloago for the international civil aviation conference, principal question arising was in what way could countries hest cooperate in the development of extensive postwar traffic.

At the opening session, three methods were proposed. The U. S. suggestion advocated a free development between friendly and progressive states, with an international body which would merely consult and advise on allocation of air roates, rate fixing and regulation of competition.

On the other hand, the British called for the regulation of postwar are traffic through a strong international authority, which, like the U. S. civil seronautics authority would assign routes and have a voice in rate making.

Australia and New Zealand pre-tented the extremist view of pool-ing all aerial resources into an inational operating company.

No form of government can claim divine authority, for God's Word does not prescribe any special form of government. But (and this is most important) the principles upon which government should be established are clearly given in God's Word, and the form of rule which best fits into the teaching of the Word necessarily calls for our interest and support. st and support. We find in the Bible the declara-tion that men are equal in the sight of God, that government is to be a ministry for God (see last week's lesson), receiving its authori-ty from Him and serving Him in exercising that power. Men are to be loyal to the government be-cause they are loyal to God. Our lesson carries forward the teaching of last Sunday. It talls us that:

try (Mark 12:13-17).

His devotion to God and the things of God is to be expected of the Christian. We almost said that it is taken for granted, and sometimes that is so true there is no reality in his life. But surely if he is a follower of Christ he must be devoted to Him

But what about his country? That But what about his country? That relation appears anew in the striking story of Christ and those who came to test Him, yes, to trap Him with a skillfully worded question.

The Pharisees, who hated Rome for its domination of Palestine, and the Herodians, who supported Rome in its control of the land, were ensured but they joined forces to in its control of the land, were enemies, but they joined forces to tempt Christ. They knew that if He said "Yes" to their question, the Jews would be angry, and if He said "No," He could be condemned as a traitor to Bome.

a traitor to Bome.

The trap was set, but it eaught only the crafty hunters. Taking their own pocket money He declared that if they used Caesar's money they ought to pay taxes to Caesar. The coin stood for an orderly government, benefits of which they enjoyed and which they ought to support.

No real Christian will swade his duty to his country whether it be to pay taxes, to take part intelligently in its government, to defend it, to pray for it, or otherwise to show his love. One of the blots on the Christian church is the lack of civic right-

II. Devoted to Both Brother and Neighber (Rom. 13:8-10). The Christian loves his brethren; by which we may know that a man is truly born again (I John 3:14). But that love reaches out beyond the circle of the brethren and touches every man who has need of it. The teachers of the Jewish law had sought to circumscribe that word "neighbor," but the Lord effectively dealt with that viewpoint in the story of the Good Samaritan (Luke 10).

All the commandm All the commandments concerning the vital matter of personal relationship are summed up in the one admonition, "Love thy neighbor as thyself" (v. 9), When love controls, there will be no social dishonesty, strife or ill-will. There will be no violence to the person or property of snother, for "love worketh no ill to his neighbor."

This is the real "good neighbor policy." Even between nations,

Love draws out love from another.

III. Sobmissive to Both the Law of God and Man (I Pet. 2:13-17).

"Fear God" (v. 17); that is, be eager that there is no failure on your part to please Him by obeying His law. That we expect of the Christian. But we expect more; he is to be a law-shiding citizen, obeying the laws of his country "for the Lord's sake" (v. 18).

The believer may, by his gody attifulness to his government, effectively witness against the ignorant criticism of foolish men who would have us think that being a Christian makes a man a weakling, or so other-worldly that-be is usaless in this world.

Our freedom in Christ is not an less in this world.

Our freedom in Christ is not an excuse for careless or wicked living. Not at all—just the opposite in fact. We "honor-all man." How can that be done? Only by the grass of God; but by His blessing we can do it. That makes for the real appreciation of man, which is the very found.
