Livestock Feed:

At present, the over-all feed supply is off about 20 percent with the supply of protein feeds expected to be off 50 to 70 percent by this fall. Another factor complicating the feed picture is the shortage of fertilizers especially nitrogen. With these factors in mind, it is suggested that farmers provide all the temporary grazing possible. The following crops can be planted now and will help to alleviate the feed situation.

A. Sudan Grass:

Sudan grass can be seeded where stable manure or nitrogen is available and will give good grazing in 6 to 8 weeks. The manure should be applied before seeding. 30 to 35 pounds of seed per acre is recommended where broadcasting is practiced, or 15 pounds per acre where planted in 2 foot rows. 300 to 400 pounds of a complete fertilizer as high in nitrogen as can be obtained should be applied on each acre to be planted, top dressed with 100 to 200 pounds of Nitrate of Soda, or its equivalent.

B. Sorghum, Soybeans, Cowpeas:

These crops are other possibilities for quick forage for dry cows and beef cattle when sown as a mixture of 2 bushels per acre of soybeans or cow peas and 30 lbs. of sorghum. This should be fertilized with about 400 pounds of a complete fertilizer and cut for a hay crop when the sorghum begins to boot.

C. Soybeans:

Soybeans will provide good supplementary grazing and a rather quick hay crop, or can be harvested and used as a source of protein, either by crushing and feeding or exchanged for soybean meal.

The Ogden, Tokio, and Biloxi varieties are recommended for grazing. Most any adapted soybean variety may be used for hay, but such fine stemmed ones as Ogden, Ootootan, and Laredo will produce a better quality hay. The Volstate, Ogden, Woods Yellow, and Tokio varieties are recommended for seed. All hay should be cut early in order to maintain a higher protein content which is especially needed now.

Terrapin Bug:

Harlequin cabbage bug or (Terrapin Bug) which has always been such a destructive pest can be easily controlled now if the collards from which this insect feeds is dusted with Saba Dilla dust. The insect is killed immediately.

The Saba Dilla dust may be bought from local seed men and insecticide dealers in the county. Last year approximately 100 farmers in Duplin County tried this new dust on the harlequin bug and found it to be very satisfactory.

Uniform Marriage Dunn, June 11.—Describing the current divorce rate as "perfectly terrible," Superior Court Judge Henry L. Stevens of Warsaw today proposed federal divorce and marriage laws which would give couples "cooling off period" before marriage.

Judge Stevens made his observations after granting more than 20 divorces in the Harnett County Superior Court. Two of the persons he granted divorces were remarried in less than 24 hours. One of them was divorced from a confessed bigamist the first time.

"We've got to do something to stop this marriage traffic running over state borders," said the jurist. "Couples should be given time to think," he said, pointing out that some of them even run off to bordering states while under the influence of whiskey to take the wedding vows. As for war marriages, he attributed some of the distress to "pent up emotions and tenseness caused by the war, together with the scattered population." He said the present situation was merely the backwash of the war times.
