

AT HOME ON THE FARM WITH The City Cousin

"You sure missed out on a lot by not being a 4-H Club boy when you were a kid," the bareheaded, strapping young lad told me, as we sat under a tree on his father's farm.

"Oh, I had a pretty good time all in all," I says, as I recalled my boyhood days in 'the big city'." "But this 4-H isn't all fun!" he said with a wrinkling brow that indicated I didn't understand. "We got work to do, too; everyone of us in our club's got at least one project — like Baby Beef calves, or gardenin', or timber thinnin'—and there's 90,000 more just like us here in North Carolina."

"Is that so?" I asked.

"Yes," the kid says, and we're all a part of National 4-H Club.

I asked him what was so special about National 4-H Club Week.

"Well," he says, "we use this to make all members familiar with the theme for the year's work."

"What is your theme this year?"

He told me the main theme is "Working Together for a Better Home and World Community."

I agreed that youth must do its share in establishing and maintaining world peace, and that there was no better way or place to begin than right at home.

State College Hints To Homemakers

Root vegetables will be fresher and have more nutritive value if their leaves or tops are trimmed off before they are stored in home refrigerators or vegetable bins.

Although bunches of carrots, turnips, beets, parsnips, and radishes may look more attractive in grocery stores with their leafy tops attached, those tops should be cut off as soon as possible because they draw moisture and nutrients from the vegetable. The tops take up valuable storage space in storage containers. The plant scientists explain that while the vegetable is growing in the ground, the leaves manufacture, such as sugar, starch, protein and other nutrients and pass them down to the roots.

However, once the vegetable is harvested and the roots are out of the ground, the situation is reversed.

Southern Farm Market Summary

With gains of 50 cents to one dollar a 100 pounds, coupled with similar gains during the previous two weeks, hog prices at southern markets almost equalled record prices of last October.

Smaller arrivals of hogs at markets and increased prices for fresh pork were price-stimulating factors at leading livestock markets.

Southern cattle arrivals were small this week and prices ranged somewhat strong to higher, with advances mostly from 50 cents to a dollar higher.

At southern poultry markets, fryers were plentiful, with prices holding steady at low levels. Hens sold firm on small offerings. Arrival of local eggs increased and prices held generally steady.

Shipment of fruits were small this week due to heavy damage
