Not sure whether this will get in to beat the deadline or not, hope it will as there is some advice urgently needed by the Demorest Clan. For the second year we have started a flower garden, but as usual, that Demorest doesn't think to plant flower until everyone else has them blooming. Anyway we tried (again) and the one piece of information needed is how do you grow footprints, where we very carefully spaded the ground and filled in with extra good borrowed fertilizer all I can find is footprints, where the Begonias were to have been so bold (that's what it said on the package). I find mostly toe prints, and in the Zinnias, which were to have been my pride and joy, I find the most prominent heels -- and to my most utter disgust some pigeon-toed guy has minced his way like a ballet dancer right down the middle of the sweet peas. So all I get is footprints, some right, some left, some coming, some going, some slow, some fast, some small, some large, rich man, poor man, fireman, chief, doctor, lawyer, merchant, thief - their footprints are all in my flower bed. There must be some cure for it. Marge suggested small stakes and pieces of string - but with the entire town full of the strings of fallen kites, this would be simply taken as another kid hazard, and a person would just step over the strings and merrily go on their way. BUT from now on I'm going to be watching, and if I

CATCH HIM WITH HIS FOOT IN IT I CAN GET HIM FOR TRESPASSING! (Remind me to tell you the sequel to that some time, it can't be printed) - Anyway, to tell someone my troubles has relieved my poor wracked brain (??) and let's try a lighter subject.
The Beulaville Buglers blew their first exhibition game of the season last Sunday when they played Richlands. Everything was going well until both teams blew sour notes in an inning each and the final score ended in favor of Richlands, 15 to 12 -- but anyway our new suits looked better than theirs, and our team had more fingers than theirs, the largest finger on my right hand is also the smartest finger I have. It always want to beat the ball into the mitt and often does, and now three days later it is MUCH the largest finger on either hand. Well, as you read this we will be playing another exhibition game (That's Saturday) in Beulaville, 3 p. m. So rush right out to the ball park and root for us. This should be enough for now, maybe too much, so long until next week. (I hope).
P.S. Just what happened to the suit with Model Theatre (don't we all) on the back of it? This is something that will be question number ONE at our next business meeting, and the Playing Manager, the Secretary, the Treasurer, and all the Players had better give a good answer to the Business Manager. (ME).
