Negro 4-H Club Girl Sells Purebred Jersey With the cooperation of her father, Mary Lee Dunegan, a 12 year old Negro girl of Raleigh, Rt. 6, bought a registered Jersey heifer for her 4-H project in May, 1946 from a well known breeder.

The heifer dropped a bull calf early in August, and in September Mary Lee entered both animals in the Negro Junior State Dairy Show, where the heifer was awarded second place and the calf, which was only three weeks old, won first place in an unclassified group of male animals. During the same month, the heifer won second place in the Durham County Dairy Show.

Mary Lee sold her male calf early in May of this year to the Mechanics and Farmers Bank for $60, and the calf is to remain in the community for farmers to use in building better quality dairy cows.

Research On Turkeys

Work especially designed to develop more economical methods of turkey feeding is underway in the research program at State College. Also in the program is breeding research aimed at developing a superior turkey that will have good type and lay a large number of eggs that will hatch well. Early production, standard egg size, and livability are other traits the breeding program is stressing.

Southern Farm Market Summary

Southern spring lambs, tardy because of February and March cold spells, gamboled into the spotlight this week with top billing at Nashville's public stockyard - a market where cattle, by bulk, and hogs by numbers, dominate the scene at other seasons.

Good weather and lush pastures have been favorable for fattening lambs and producers rushed an estimated 5,000 to Nashville the first 4 days of this week to avoid sharp price reduction for over-90-pound weights.

Cattle arrivals dropped off sharply, with prices steady to strong. However, canner grade cows lost $2 and common grades of other classes were also off that much.

Southern hogs were mostly 50c a hundred pounds higher with tops at Baltimore at $24.75.

Cotton prices lost ground the first of the week but regained a good part of the loss by Wednesday. Offerings were limited with very little really good quality was included.

Egg prices were firm bringing up to 43 1-2 cents a dozen in Atlanta.

Fryer supplies were offered more freely in the north Georgia section but prices held around 34 cents.

The first car of Georgia peaches moved out May 28, twenty days later than last year's early season

Film Woos Ala. Away From Fla.

North Carolina's old travelogue, "Variety Vacationland", distributed by the State Advertising Division, is still getting customers.

The Alexander City, Ala., Kiwanis bulletin says:

"We don't know how many A. C. Kiwanians we lost to the state of North Carolina, but if N. C. is half as good as the propaganda film shown last week we couldn't blame anyone for wanting to go there. Art Surprise says North Carolina hasn't got a thing Alabama hasn't got - North Carolina just shows it off to better advantage. Alabama has the assets - let's advertise them. It can be done as has been so clearly demonstrated by North Carolina."

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

How to Outsmart a River

Maybe you read about the flood in Litchfield County. It never bothered our town—even though the river's only half a mile away.

Seven years ago, the farmers around here got together—and put in a set of flood controls, to regulate high water, and protect our fields. It took a pack of labor and co-operation, but it worked.

We were talking about it in Andy's Garden Tavern, over a friendly glass of beer; and Andy was saying how it was like the brewing industry's Self-Regulation, as he called it. The brewers work with beer retailers to help them maintain decent, clean taverns. Brewers don't want beer sold in the other kind. This system of moral suasion and self-control works mighty well, too, Andy says.

From where I sit, co-operative regulation is the best way of getting sure results—whether it's keeping our wheat fields healthy, or keeping our taverns neat and clean and law-abiding.
