Safety Sought In Tobacco Curers

Proposed minimum safety requirements for tobacco-burn curing units were discussed fully at a public hearing conducted by Supt. C. D. Baucom, of the Weights and Measures of the State Department of Agriculture.

At the outset of the hearing, Baucom reported that 1,400 curing barns burned last year in North Carolina with a total estimated loss of $2,000,000.

Under the law, all curing units sold after September 1 must bear the Department of Agriculture's seal of approval. Baucom's division is charged with inspecting the various types of units and seeing that the manufacturer's specifications meet the minimum safety requirements.

The manufacturers voiced strong opposition to a proposal that each heating unit carry an approval label tentatively priced at $1.00. They pointed out that some barns have 30 to 40 heating units, and said the proposed price, which would be passed on to the farmer, would be prohibitive in such cases. They suggested that the entire curing assembly for a single barn carry only one seal.

The proposed minimum safety rules would require of all curers an automatic audible alarm and a positive cut-off of the fuel supply when barn temperature reaches a danger point; a protective guard or screen for all curers that reach a temperature of 500 degrees Fahrenheit at any time during the curing process; and an automatic cut-off to stop the fuel supply of oil-burning units should the fuel fail to ignite when entering the combustion chamber or should ignition fail while fuel is being supplied to the burner.

The proposed regulation would require the location of curers and flues three inches from inflammable material, such as walls, for each 100 degrees of flue temperature, with a minimum distance of eight inches mandatory.

Compared with other States, North Carolina ranks third in total cash receipts from farm marketings and 13th in total cash income from crops, livestock and livestock products combined.

ELECTRICITY REPRESENTS ONE

that has proven to be as SOLID as "The Rock of Gibraltar" throughout the years of the present Century!

The present high cost of living and rise of prices within the last decade has worked a great hardship on many families with a fixed income . . .

NOT SO WITH ELECTRICITY . . .

The price of ELECTRICITY has gone consistently D-O-W-N! In fact, the cost of electricity to the consumer has DECREASED just as steadily as the many uses for it have INCREASED.

MOORE'S WAREHOUSE

WHITEVILLE, N. C.

NEWEST--BIGGEST AND BEST-$-A SALE EVERY DAY

A. H. (BERT) MOORE, Owner and Manager - C. C. MASON, Assistant

Dear Farmer Friends:

For your accommodation and convenience I have constructed a large, modern warehouse just outside the congested area of Whiteville to be known as Moore's Warehouse. This warehouse is located on Lee Street, opposite the Post Office and within easy reach of the business district. Here you will have more parking space, more floor space, and a better place to sell your tobacco. It was my desire and intention to see you personally but it has taken every minute and every ounce of energy to get this great structure ready for you in time for the opening day, Thursday, August 7th. This is your warehouse. It was built for you. I urge you to make your headquarters here at all times - the largest warehouse on the border - modern equipped with new scales, new baskets, new trucks . . . everything new except the personnel, consisting of the same courteous and efficient individuals who have taken delight in serving you at our former locations. Associated with us this year will be Mr. Charlie M. Mason, a fine gentleman and an excellent tobacco man. Mr. Mason has operated on the Whiteville market for a number of years and is well known to many people of this vicinity. He will be glad to help you solve your tobacco problems. We operate independently as Moore's Warehouse and have no connection with any other warehouse or firm here. More floor space gives us more selling time and more piles to sell with a sale every day. In appreciation for your contribution to my success in the past I can only repay you by your taking advantage of these improvements by selling all your tobacco throughout the entire season at "Moore's for More."

Sincerely Yours,
A. H. (BERT) MOORE
