The following is an editorial appearing in the Goldsboro News-Argus Monday, Oct. 13:

Ass, Backwards

First let's look at the problems: There is a world shortage of food.

Grains contain more nourishment per pound than any other kind of food. For that reason it is cheaper as well as more practical to ship between nations great quantities of grain for food than food in other forms.

Shipments of grains from the United States have cut down what would in normal times be a national over-supply, until now supplies are short.

Short supplies cause high prices. High prices of grains, which are used for cattle and fowl feed as well as for human food, result in farmers killing cattle and poultry rather than to keep buying high-priced feeds, or cause meat and poultry prices to go up, or a combination of the two.

A simple answer to the food and price problem in the United States might seem to be to cut down the amount we export.

But we are told that export of food is a MUST if we are to keep both European nations and Japan from falling under the sway of Communists. And Communists aim at a world very different from life in these United States.

So, in the United States, we have seen grain leaving the country in great quantities both for the sake of charity and as one of the measures in protecting ourselves against a world going Communist. We have seen prices of all foods connected with grains, either directly or through feed to animals, going up, up, up until the daily lives of the great majority of American families are involved.

The situation became a worry for U. S. Government officials. Inevitably it also cast shadows toward the 1948 national election.)

What was done? President Truman pointed at meat, at poultry, at eggs. He asked the people of this nation not to eat meat one day a week, not to eat eggs or poultry a different day in the week. (No emphasis on no eggs and poultry the meatless day, no meat the eggless and poultryless day.)

That's backing into the real problem, the grain problem.

We'd almost suspect that among the Missourians brought to Washington there is some equivalent of the father of a mule. Who else would have advised President Truman to make an appeal to the American people which is both deceptive and doesn't face the basic facts. No wonder there are reports of poor results from the appeal, all over the nation.

Follow an ass, backward?

No let's look at the truth—as this nation's people never are afraid to do—and then go forward.

Family Reunion

The five daughters of Mrs. G. P. Pridgen of Warsaw were home together with their mother last week end for the first time in six years. They were: Mrs. H. W. Shoulars of Rich Square, N. C., Mrs. R. J. Andrews of Jacksonville, Fla., Mrs. C. G. Brown of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. J. R. Grady of Kenansville and Mrs. F. B. John of Rhana, Pa. One son was at home, G. P. Pridgen, Jr. and only one son was not present for the occasion, E. V. Pridgen of Norfolk, Va. It really took a lot of gabbing to catch up on six years.

Attends Centennial

Among those from Warsaw who attended the Centennial in Goldsboro last week were: Judge and Mrs. H. L. Stevens, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. E. Walker Stevens and Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Hule, who were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Weil, honoring Secretary of War and Mrs. Kenneth C. Royal; also Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Jenkins, Mrs. J. K. Rea, Jr., Mrs. O. H. Best, Mrs. Henry West, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Parker and Mrs. Maurice Jordan.
