Planner's Dream

"With more miners at work and more machinery, Britain is producing 15,000,000 tons less coal per year than in 1941." This statement by Mr. Churchill aptly describes the results of nationalization. It is striking that whereas England used to export large quantities of coal, she is now importing as much as 600,000 tons from the United States in the present quarter. This is the picture 18 months after nationalization of Britain's coal industry was begun. Last summer in England I had a conference with Mr. Michael Young, head of the research department of the Labor Party, and their chief economist. Thirty or so years of age, tall and slender, Mr. Young expressed great confidence in England's program of nationalization of industry. He hoped the program would proceed rapidly to include all industries, and he was confident it would bring full employment, high productivity, and greater prosperity. Mr. Young's hopes remain in the dream stage.

High British officials came to Washington last month. They wanted to discuss new terms on the American loan. A London report of their interview with Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder tells of Mr. Snyder asking the British officials "Why nationalization had not produced more coal and if it has hampered output." Mr. Snyder was also firm in inquiring whether Britain, under the scheme of nationalization, was "still going to be a solvent concern."

With England sitting on vast coal reserves, yet importing coal, one can understand that Secretary Snyder is a bit dubious about the results of nationalization. In coal mining under nationalization there was at first an upward surge of output. But soon the gain wore off, and turned into a dramatic loss. This experiment in government management of industry simply did not come through. Other industries are learning in the same manner.

The Labor government, which has urged more construction of houses, now finds it necessary to reduce its quota of new houses by 80,000. The use of petrol is to be cut down by one-third; foreign travel is to be reduced by one-half. An individual can now buy only 20 cents worth of beef a week. The fact that the food situation is extremely critical plus the failure of nationalized industries to get production led to the passing of Britain's Crisis Bill.

The British Press described the Bill as giving the government power to:

1. Direct labor within an industry or from one industry to another.
 2. Replace inefficient managements in any industry by government nominees, which will mean, in effect, taking over the business.
 3. Divert investments into certain channels, and prevent them going into others.
 4. Control hours and conditions of work, and even rates of pay.
 5. Send supplies and raw materials to certain industries, and keep them from others.
 6. Order goods to be exported to given markets, and prevent them going to others less profitable to the nation.
- These dictatorial powers are the true offspring of a government managed economy.

Uncle Sam Says

Small business firms can take a wing tip from many of their customers who have built a reserve nestegg of Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan for buying Savings Bonds. The Bond-a-Month Plan at local banks where the current struggle, the grocer and the butcher maintain checking accounts is equally effective in providing a growing reserve for a business. For example, suppose you own a business which nets a $1,000 a month. By investing $200 a month in Savings Bonds through your bank's Bond-a-Month Plan you would have a $2,000 reserve in one year's time.

BIG GUNS, SPEAK FOR RESERVISTS

With hundreds of Naval Reservists aboard for a two-week cruise, the USS Wisconsin, Pacific veteran of World War II, demonstrates the might of her rifles as she plows over a postwar Atlantic in the Navy's ceaseless program of personnel training. A participant in all the Pacific operations of 1945, the "Wiskey" has been one of the principal units employed for the schooling of Reservists since the end of the war. (Official U. S.
