Timely Tips to Farmers:

Proper Chicken Houses Essential for Production

Chickens are susceptible to changes in weather conditions, and unless properly housed during winter months egg production will drop drastically. Adequate, weatherproof laying houses are essential for profitable production.

Poultry specialists of state agriculture colleges, in collaboration with farm building authorities and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, recently made the following recommendations:

"Insulation is generally recommended for laying houses, because it helps maintain more nearly uniform interior temperatures regardless of the season. In almost all laying houses the roofs or ceiling should be well insulated to counteract the heat absorbed by the roof in hot weather, and to reduce heat losses during cold weather."

The first essential of any farm building, even before insulation is considered, is a sound, weather-tight roof which will give year-round protection against changing weather conditions. If the laying hens are subjected to chilling draughts or dampness through leaking roofs, egg production drops off and fatal illness increases.

Inspect Roofs
Farm building authorities recommend that the roofs of laying houses be carefully inspected and if weaknesses are found, suggest re-roofing rather than patching before making additional expenditures for insulating materials. A roof of sturdy fire, and wind-resistant asphalt shingles usually can be placed over the old roof.

The additional covering of asphalt shingles will provide added roof insulation.

Agriculture engineers also recommend that portable chicken houses be repaired and rebuilt during the winter months to have them ready for spring when the young chicks arrive. Here again, adequate roof covering is essential. On small, portable range houses mineral surfaced, or smooth surfaced asphalt roll roofing, properly applied, will provide snug protection for the baby chicks.

Winterizing Tractors
The farm tractor is a complex piece of machinery and requires checking at many points when getting it ready for winter. The usual procedure is to change the motor oil and the transmission lubricant and get the cooling system prepared for winter. But proper winterizing also requires checking the thermostats, air cleaner, magneto, spark plugs, sediment bowls, the tires and the battery.
