DOGS A FIXTURE IN WHITE HOUSE

23 of Nation's 32 Chief Executives Have Been Dog Lovers

Of the 32 men who have served as Chief Executives of the United States, fully 23 have been dog owners and lovers, reports the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City.

Undoubtedly, it states, the fact that the White House has been the home of many dogs has had its influence in making America the most dog-minded nation the world has yet known. Following the example of their Presidents, millions of Americans have come to feel that a home without a dog is incomplete, and that a child who grows up without the companionship and protection of a dog is underprivileged.

The tradition of the Presidents owning dogs started right at the beginning with George Washington, who was intensely interested in dogs, Foxhounds in particular. The current canine residents of the presidential mansion are Mike, a handsome young Irish Setter, and Keller, a silver buff Cocker Spaniel puppy.

Probably no family that lived in the White House had more dogs than the Theodore Roosevelts. With six children, all of them animal lovers, it was inevitable that many dogs should be part of the family life. A Rat Terrier, a Bull Terrier, several dogs that were rankly mongrels, and a St. Bernard named Rollo, were owned by the Roosevelts. In addition to the family pets, Theodore Roosevelt was always interested in the sporting and hound breeds, as would be natural to a man who was a noted sportsman and big game-hunter.

The Calvin Coolidges were devoted to dogs. During their occupancy of the White House they en-and children of Wilmington. Mrs. William Henderson returned to her home Sunday after a week end visit with Mr. and Mrs. Jones Smith. On her way to Smithfield, she was accompanied as far as Goldsboro by Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Southerland and Mrs. W. M. Rivenbark, Jr. and baby of Wallace were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith at the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Roberts and daughter Kay, and Mrs. Eva Tyndall of Mt. Olive were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Williams Sunday.

Mr. Richard Stroud of Oak Ridge Military School, spent the week end at home here.

State College Hints To Homemakers

See your house as others see it. Try looking at the back, front, and sides. Do the window shades and curtains need straightening? Are the grounds neat? Next, enter the front door as if you were a stranger and take a quick but all-inclusive glance around. Thus you actually see your house as others see it, you may at the same time note some changes which you, seeing through their eyes, will want to make.

Southern Farm Market Eummary

Dwindling supplies of cattle at southern markets sold actively this week with prices strong to $1 or more a hundredweight higher. The best demand was for the lower grades. Common grade slaughter cattle brought from $17 to $19 with some down to $16, and others up to $21.50. Canner cows went as high as $16.25.

More hogs moved to markets in the lower South but supplies fell off at terminal markets in the upper South with current prices moving down 50 cents to as much as $1.50 with the the greatest loss in the tri-state area.

regular but prices moved steady to 2 cents a pound higher. Buying preference was for birds weighing under 2 pounds, and heavier fryers were hard to move, even at price discounts.

Moderate shipments of fresh fruits and vegetables moved from southeastern points, and prices made few changes. Florida straw berries moved in light volume at 27 cents a pint, plus crates and loading charges.

Southeastern farmers who have cotton generally continued to hold onto it this week. Prices gained moderately, averaging 32.79 cents a pound Friday.
