Strawberry Days In Wallace Thur. Fri. Sat.

By JOHN SIKES

Wallace, April 22.—From the impressive list of agricultural experts each of whose hands are busily working in the shaping of the program, the First Annual Strawberry Jamboree set for Wallace should be as interesting to the farmers, their wives and children as a Farmer's Almanac.

The program is jammed with agricultural events and items pertaining to the farm.

The official opening of the Jamboree is set for 10 A. M. on April 29.

The Jamboree will get underway with a radio broadcast over Station WRRZ by remote control from the corner of Main and Railroad Sts. in the business district of Wallace.

On this broadcast Melvin Cording, Wallace dairyman who's chairman of the Jamboree's Agricultural Committee, will introduce a flock of agricultural officials from State College, the counties of Sampson, Onslow, Pender, New Hanover, and Duplin, Dr. Charles Dearing and others of the State Test Farm at Willard, and other visiting officials.

With a musical interlude by Donald Stroud and His Dixie Pals coming to lighten the introductions, Tim Fields, Vocational Agriculture teacher at Wallace High, will then introduce the Home Demonstration officials and others who're taking care of the lighter side of the Jamboree.

This broadcast lasts until 10:25 and then the Jamboree will move to Jamboree headquarters in Hussey's No. 1 Warehouse on Highway No. 117.

There from 10:45 to 11:00 Frank Jeter, Director of Public Relations for State College Extension Service and widely known agriculture radio commentator, will speak over a WRRZ hook-up.

During his radio time Mr. Jeter will introduce Vernon Vines, Associate Editor of "The Farm Journal", Philadelphia, who will also say a few words over the air to the folks.

From 11:00 to 12:00 there will be music by Donald Stroud and His Dixie Pals and other guests of the Jamboree will be introduced to the folks.

On a WRRZ radio broadcast from 1:30 to 2:15 Melvin Cording will explain the details of the agricultural features of the Jamboree and Tim Fields will tell about the entertainment features.

Immediately following these explanatory talks an afternoon of contests will get underway.

These contests include a Husband-Calling Contest, under the direction of Mrs. Frances Register, Pender County Home Demonstration Agent; Men's Button-Sewing Contest, under the direction of Miss Hilda Clontz, Duplin County Home Demonstration Agent; Tug-of-War, directed by Neil Bolton, Tide Water Power Agriculture Agent; Ladies' Nail-Driving Contest, directed by Ellis Vestal; Girls' Hen-Catching Contest, directed by W. G. Andrews; Horse-Shoe Tournament, directed by V. H. Reynolds, Duplin Assistant County Agent, and H. E. Beam, Vocational Agriculture Teacher at Franklin High School; and a Greasy-Pig Catching Contest, directed by Ellis Vestal.

Other contests will probably be jammed into the proceedings by Tim Fields and his Committee. From 8:00 to 9:30 P. M., still on Thursday and at the Jamboree Headquarters, the Strawberry Fashion Parade and Strawberry Talent Show will be held on the Jamboree stage. The Parade and Talent Show are under the direction of Miss Mary Lee Burns, Pender Assistant Home Demonstration Agent; Miss Alta Lawson, Duplin Assistant Home Demonstration Agent; and Miss Eleanor Chestnut, Home Economics Teacher at Wallace High.

Participants in the Fashion Parade will be 4-H Club Girls and Home Economics students of Duplin, Pender, Onslow, and Sampson Counties who will model clothes and outfit they have made themselves.

The Strawberry Talent Show will feature numbers by pupils from the grade schools, as well as the high schools, in the counties named.

The Methodist congregation in Kenansville is short $2,000 and the goal of $8500 to build their parsonage. They have formed a "Dollar a Month Club" to raise the remainder. Anyone interested in contributing see M. F. Allen at the bank.

The parsonage is to be a six-story building of brick veneer. It will be located next to the Baptist manse which is now under construction, on one side and the church on the other. Presbyterians and Baptists have already joined the club.

That's the spirit of Kenansville cooperation.

Cooperation Is The Spirit Of Our Kenansville
