Farmers Warned On Lightning Hazards

"Lightning - nature's artillery - causes 37% of all farm fires," L. F. Weeks, Duplin County Agent, asserted today. Each year, he pointed out, lightning destroys approximately $20,000,000 worth of farm property in the United States. It takes the lives of 500 people, and injures 1,300 others - and the lion's share of these victims are farm residents.

This is the picture - correct and unexaggerated. And a horrible picture it is because the greater part of these tragedies could be prevented.

Lightning tends to strike the highest point in the vicinity. This may be a barn, tree, or a man working in the field.

"A building adequately equipped with lightning rods and properly grounded affords the best protection from lightning; and, of course, all farms should be equipped with an approved type of fire extinguisher, which will not only put out fires caused by lightning, but all other types of fires also, is some thing that no farmer should overlook.

If you are working in the field, lie down in a low spot, away from wire fences, trees, live stock, and machinery. Avoid seeking shelter under lone trees or small groves. Wire fences and machinery should also be avoided during electrical storms as they may attract lightning. The National Safety Council points out that protection can be provided for livestock by the grounding of wire fences every 100 yards. It should be remembered that metal roof buildings afford no protection from lightning unless they are adequately grounded.
