PETE THE PELICAN FINDS MATE; WINGS AWAY

Pete the pet pelican which Capt. Gib Willis of Morehead City rescued following a losing battle with an eagle last fall has found a mate and winged away to some coastal rocky. The giant bird which became so gentle that it would eat from its benefactor's hand, made out alright during the winter months. It was not long after the rescue before the giant bird was shipshape again. But Pete did not fly away. That is, Pete did not fly away until love overwhelmed him recently. One day he brought a visiting pelican in to shore and his adopted home. They courted awhile and then disappeared. That was several days ago. Capt. Willis is of the opinion that the birds may have gone to Shell Island in Pamlico Sound near Ocracoke to set up housekeeping. He hopes the big bird returns in the autumn.
