Of all the men that you know, of all the men that you will ever know, your father is your very best pal. He has encountered more than life and knows the spots that are waylaid with evil. He will not fall into the same pitfell twice, and by taking counsel with him, you will save yourself from similar misfortune. Always go to him in your troubles. Make your father a confidant. He will answer your questions and will understand your position. RESPECT the autophy of your father that is one of the very best resolves you can possibly make Never, never so and travel the highways and byways without perental dissipline. When you say that you will be home by aline o'clock, that is the very thing you should put into practice. Life has storn coded, One of them is to keep your word when once passed, though it may cost you something that may not be temperarily profitable, but in the end very rich dividends.

NEVER build on the habits of distances and disobedience. If you want to follow the highway of the right, lot the intelligence of your father fall upon that highway. To make your way of life sure, study the and the second s 101111
